

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH FINAL

BENSON WON'T
ACCEPT FARM
BILL AS REVISED
BY CONFEREES

Comments After Leaving White House — President Won't Make Up Mind Till He Sees Measure.

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson said after a White House conference today the new farm bill is not acceptable to him in its present form.

There was no indication, however, that President Eisenhower had reached any final conclusions about the compromise measure, drafted by a Senate-House conference committee which completed its work last night.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty told reporters before the meeting broke up the President would not make up his mind on the bill until it had passed both houses and had been sent to him for action.

The President had an hour's meeting with Benson, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture True D. Morse, of St. Louis, and White House staff members. Hagerty called it an "initial discussion" of the measure.

(The United Press pointed out it was Mr. Eisenhower's third meeting with Benson in less than 24 hours. Hagerty said the President and Benson also conferred yesterday afternoon and last night.)

Benson questioning. As Benson left by a side door of the White House, reporters had an opportunity to put three questions to him before he got into his automobile and sped away.

Asked if he hoped to get the bill returned to the committee, Benson replied "No comment."

"Do you hope there will be some changes somewhere along the line?" he was asked.

"There will have to be some changes... to make it a good bill," Benson responded.

Then a reporter asked: "Is the bill acceptable in its present form?"

"It is not acceptable to me in its present form."

Hagerty said Mr. Eisenhower would discuss the farm bill at his weekly meeting with Republican congressional leaders Monday morning. Benson also will attend this meeting, which comes shortly before the President leaves for a work-rest vacation in Augusta, Ga.

The compromise bill contains some features requested by the Administration but also calls for a one-year restoration of high, rigid price supports opposed by Mr. Eisenhower and Benson.

Others attending. Attending today's discussion between the President and his Agriculture Department leaders were Sherman Adams, chief assistant to the President; William B. Parsons, deputy assistant in charge of legislative liaison; Gabriel Hauge, administrative assistant on economic affairs; and Fred A. Seaton, administrative assistant, all White House staff members.

Any Administration effort to get a bill more to its liking would require a new battle in the Senate or the House. There has been some speculation such an effort would be made.

A House vote, probably on Wednesday, will provide the first test.

Both Senator Allen J. Ellender (Dem.), Louisiana, and Representative Harold D. Cooley (Dem.), North Carolina, chairman of the two agriculture committees, predicted quick approval of the bill in Congress.

They put it up to Mr. Eisenhower on a take-it-or-leave-it basis. Ellender said the President would be expected to sign it.

DRUNK 5 YEARS,
TAX EVADER SAYS;
JUDGE UNMOVED

CHICAGO, April 7 (AP)—A former state employee accused of income tax evasion said yesterday he had been drunk for five years and didn't know what he was doing when he made out his returns.

"Were you intoxicated all the time?" the prosecutor asked Harold G. Thompson, 57 years old.

"Yes," Thompson replied. "You mean you didn't draw a sober breath in five years?"

Judge Vin G. Knuch of the United States District Court convicted Thompson of evading $1645 in taxes on an unreported income of $7361 for 1949, 1950 and 1951. Sentencing was deferred.

Thompson was a state food inspector from 1936 to 1952 when he was suspended during an investigation into illegal sales of horse meat as beef. The inquiry uncovered instances of alleged bribery of various inspectors. He left the department in 1953.

MOURNERS MADE BENEFICIARIES IN BACHELOR'S WILL

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., April 7 (AP)—John Monroe, 65-year-old bachelor farmer, wanted to leave some money for his friends.

"Who were his friends?" "My friends will be at my funeral," he said.

Before his death Monroe made one request: that mourners sign a register at the funeral home and at the cemetery. The funeral was March 10 at nearby Brashear.

His will, which was made public yesterday, shows Monroe placed $8000 in trust for upkeep of three cemeteries. It also directed that each person over 12 years old who went to the funeral home would get one share of the rest of the estate, and those who also went to the burial would get two shares.

Any Administration effort to get a bill more to its liking would require a new battle in the Senate or the House. There has been some speculation such an effort would be made.

A House vote, probably on Wednesday, will provide the first test.

Both Senator Allen J. Ellender (Dem.), Louisiana, and Representative Harold D. Cooley (Dem.), North Carolina, chairman of the two agriculture committees, predicted quick approval of the bill in Congress.

BANKERS HAVING LARGEST STATE
FUNDS MADE BIG POLITICAL GIFTS

Heads of Kansas City and Jefferson City Firms Each Gave $1000 to Democrats, Records Disclose.

By EDWARD H. THORNTON
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, April 7 — Heads of two banks which hold the largest deposits of interest-free state funds were generous contributors to the 1952 state Democratic campaign, a check of records here showed today.

Contributions of $1000 each were made by James M. Kemper Sr., board chairman of the Commerce Trust Co., of Kansas City, and Richard R. Nacy, president of the Central Missouri Trust Co. of Jefferson City.

These two banks held the largest amounts of state deposits as of last March 30. On that day, the Kansas City bank had $24,067,893 in state funds and the Jefferson City bank had $15,156,466.

Listed in Report.

The Kemper and Nacy contributions were listed in a report of the Democratic state committee's receipts and expenditures in the 1952 general election campaign. The report was filed by Kemper, who was treasurer of the state committee at the time, in the Jackson County recorder of deeds office.

A number of other Missouri bankers were listed in the report as contributors to the Democratic campaign fund. It listed $150 each were given by the Central Missouri Trust, and their relatives, gave a total of $3000 to the party in 1952.

In addition to Nacy's $1000 donation, contributions of $500 each were listed from Nacy's son, Richard R. Nacy Jr., Alex Victor and George B. Nacy, Jr., presidents of Central Missouri Trust, and from Winston Cook, Sam and Winston Cook are sons of Howard Cook, board chairman of the bank. Young Nacy is an attorney in Jefferson City.

Supported Donnelly, Bates. Nacy, a former State Treasurer, is an influential Democratic leader, as is Howard Cook. They supported Gov. Phil M. Donnelly and State Treasurer G. Hubert Bates in their campaign for reelection.

As state treasurer, Bates has the initial authority to select the banks in which interest-free state funds are deposited. These selections are subject to approval by the Governor and State Auditor Haskell Holman.

An officer and a stockholder of the Exchange National Bank of Jefferson City, which held a state fund deposit of $1,150,000 on March 30, also were listed as contributors. Donations of $150 each were listed from Frank Ralston, trust officer of the bank, and Hugh Stephens, former president and board chairman, who is still a stockholder.

Donnelly, a graduate of St. Louis University Law School and a former special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, became an assistant circuit attorney in March, 1947. He served as first assistant under the late James W. Griffin.

Dowd is married, has six children and lives at 4651 Dover place.

PRIVATE DISCHARGED, TOLD
OF 10-YEAR WAIT FOR ORDERS

WASHINGTON, April 7 (P)—The Air Force said yesterday it is issuing "an undesirable discharge" to Pvt. Joe V. Garcia, who had reported he was never discharged from the Army 10 years ago and had failed to receive orders transferring him to the Air Force.

Garcia, then an Army private, was a hospital patient 10 years ago for two months. He says that when he left the hospital he looked for his old outfit, but it had moved and he was told to go home and await orders. The orders never came, Garcia says. Meanwhile, he has been working as a truck driver and living at San Antonio, Tex.

Donkey for Young Eisenhower. HENDAYE, France, April 7 (UP)—Generalissimo Francisco Franco of Spain is sending President Eisenhower's grandchildren a pet donkey. A truck carrying the year-old donkey was cleared through French customs at this border town yesterday en route to Paris where it will be flown to the United States.

State Auditor Holman, who was then chief clerk in the state treasurer's office, contributed $125. Former Gov. Forrest Smith gave $25.

Gibson is chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, which approved Gov. Donnelly's proposal for submission to the voters of a constitutional amendment permitting the state to earn interest on one half of its idle funds.

At nearly Independence last night, Lon Hocker of St. Louis, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, sharply criticized Donnelly's proposal.

CALIFORNIA U.
CENSURED BY A.A.U.P. OVER
LOYALTY OATH

Dismissal of 32 Called Blow to Academic Freedom — Five Other Colleges Face Action.

The American Association of University Professors voted today to censure the University of California because of the action by its board of regents in 1949 requiring faculty members to take a loyalty oath.

The action, which resulted in dismissal of 32 teachers who refused to take the oath, was such as to weaken academic freedom, the censure resolution said.

It then added that "substantial progress has been made at the University of California; therefore it is recommended that the committee on academic freedom and tenure of the association promptly confer with the administration of the university in regard to removing the censure as quickly as possible."

5 Other Colleges. Votes on similar censures against five other colleges and universities, recommended by the organization's 30-member governing body, were to be taken today by the association, meeting at Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson for its forty-second convention.

The other five are Ohio State University, Rutgers University, Jefferson Medical College, University of Oklahoma and Temple University.

Censure of the California institution was approved after a 10-minute debate in which George R. Stewart, an English professor at the university and an opponent of censure, left the meeting, charging the limit on debate was "gag rule and tyranny."

A speaker for censure, Quincy Wright, professor of political science at the University of Chicago, told the meeting the California case "was the most serious violation of academic freedom in the history of the country."

Fitness to Teach Is Test. Yesterday the association adopted a special committee report on academic freedom which stated that a teacher should not be fired for belonging to the Communist party unless it is shown he is unfit to teach.

The delegates voted that professors should not be ousted for refusing to testify under the protection of the Fifth Amendment or for refusing to answer questions before a congressional investigating committee, and declared that membership in the Communist party, of itself, is not sufficient grounds for removal from the college faculty.

The association also held that a teacher or professor should be dismissed for refusing to take a loyalty or disclaimer oath, and said that each teacher must receive a fair trial by his own peers—other faculty members—and not through any extra-legal committee.

The statement of principles was drawn up by a special committee concerned with reported violations of academic freedom and tenure in civil liberties matters. The group, headed by Prof. Bentley Glass of Johns Hopkins University, also recommended that the six institutions to be voted on today.

During a sharp debate on the statement, proponents argued that the principles were essentially re-affirmations of positions long held by the association, and that the six institutions considered today involved the firing or suspension of faculty members on civil rights questions. The association voted yesterday to censure the University of California, St. Louis University and North Dakota Agricultural College.

There are three schools remaining on the censure list from previous years: West Chester State Teachers College, Pa.; the University of Kansas City, Mo., and Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S.C. Censure has been withdrawn from two others, Evansville College, Evansville, Ind., and Middle Tennessee State College, the convention was told.

Ralph F. Fuchs, general secretary of the association, described the effect of censure as "purely moral," but said some teachers might be unwilling to accept posts at censored schools.

The association authorized its committee on academic freedom and tenure, headed by Prof. Russell N. Sullivan of the University of Illinois, to investigate five other colleges to see if they should be censured for violations of academic freedom and tenure rights.

The institutions are the University of Vermont, the University of Kansas City, Reed College and New York University.

In a banquet address last night, association president William E. Britton said that education may have reached the point "where we are inundated by oceans of evidentiary facts which we do not now need."

Citing one school where 2000 courses are offered, he told the association that educational "fragments" tend to become "congealed" in a curriculum.

U.N. SECRETARY ARRIVES
IN ROME, SHOOTING IN
GAZA REGION CONTINUESSpain, Morocco Sign Four-Point
Declaration of Independence

Document Recognizes Sovereignty of Sultan Ben Youssef, Unity of Region—Other Papers Approved.

MADRID, April 7 (UP)—

Spain and Morocco signed a joint declaration today granting Spanish Morocco independence and ending its 44-year status as a protectorate of Spain.

The four-point declaration said the Spanish government recognized the sovereignty of Sultan Mohammed V. Ben Youssef and the independence and unity of Morocco as proclaimed by him.

It also gave Morocco the right to conduct its own military and diplomatic affairs.

He signed an agreement signed in 1912 which made the northern fringe of Morocco a Spanish protectorate.

The two governments also signed a six-point protocol that will govern relations between Spain and Morocco until the declaration of independence is put into effect.

Shortly after the agreements were signed, Ben Youssef, who came here this week to conduct the final negotiations, took off for Granada on his way back to Morocco.

He previously had won freedom for the largest part of Morocco in an "independence within interdependence" agreement with France. The new agreement with Spain will permit unification of the two areas.

The agreements provided for close co-operation and friendship between Spain and Morocco. Negotiations on this score are continuing.

The additional protocol vested legislative powers of Morocco in the sultan with the provision that the Spanish representative in Rabat be kept informed of all bills and decrees affecting Spanish interests.

It said powers exercised by Spanish authorities in Morocco will be transferred to the Moroccan government, and that Spain would aid in organizing a Moroccan army. The present status of the Spanish army in Morocco will remain in force during the transition, the protocol said.

HAMMARSKJOLD
AFTER PARLEY WITH BRITISH

He Will See World Agency's Palestine Officials, Pope Pius Before Leaving for the Holy Land.

ROME, April 7 (AP)—United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold flew into Rome tonight and began his dramatic effort to ease the danger of Arab-Israeli war.

Hammarskjold arrived from London, where he conferred briefly with British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd on the situation along the Israeli-Egyptian border.

As they talked Israeli and Egyptian forces blazed away at each other in the Gaza border area despite the urgent United Nations appeal for a cease-fire. There were no deaths lasting up to four hours but apparently no casualties.

To Talk With Pope. Hammarskjold will confer with U.N. Palestine officials in Rome and also see Pope Pius XII before leaving for the Middle East.

Waiting in Rome to brief him were Henry Vignier, political adviser to Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, the U.N. truce chief; Henry R. Labrousse, the American head of the U.N. Palestine refugee relief agency; and a British official.

Burns is due in tomorrow if the Gaza situation quiets enough to make his departure possible. Hammarskjold counts on three busy days of planning at a special office set up for him in the U.N. Agriculture Organization building. Italian foreign office and FAO officials were at the airport to meet him.

In London, where he was met by Foreign Secretary Lloyd, Hammarskjold said he did not believe there was any "special explanation" for the latest flare-ups in the Gaza area.

"It starts off with a minor incident and flares up in a way we know only too well," he told newspapermen. "I don't think we should try to find some deeper political motive."

Hammarskjold and Lloyd walked arm-in-arm into the airport lounge. It is reserved for distinguished guests.

Over a quick lunch they talked with Hammarskjold's assignment from the U.N. Security Council to seek ways of reducing Israeli-Arab tension. The United States had proposed the mission for Hammarskjold.

Hammarskjold expects to spend a month in the Middle East, surveying the tension and studying how to abate them.

"I have nothing but hope and good will toward the nations concerned and expect to receive co-operation from them," Hammarskjold said as he started his mission.

"Something useful should be done and something useful can be done."

Hammarskjold's departure from New York last night was delayed while a police bomb squad made what was described as "a routine check" of the airliner.

A U.N. report said fire along the Gaza strip Thursday killed 55 Egyptians and wounded 102. It said six Israeli civilians and two soldiers were wounded that day.

The Egyptians put their death toll in Thursday's action at 63 soldiers and civilians, including nine women patients in a hospital.

Israeli spokesmen said four Israeli soldiers were killed in clashes earlier this week.

A U.N. cease-fire appeal halted Thursday's bloody clash. A fresh artillery duel broke out yesterday but subsided quickly.

Both sides accused each other of starting today's shooting, as they have each day since Thursday's outbreak.

In Jerusalem, an Israeli army spokesman said Egyptians in the Gaza strip opened fire at Israel outposts three times.

An Egyptian spokesman in Cairo said Israeli positions fired four hours in the Damra sector northeast of Gaza. A fresh artillery duel broke out yesterday but subsided quickly.

Both sides accused each other of starting today's shooting, as they have each day since Thursday's outbreak.

BAHRAIN IS PART

TELLS BRITAIN

Formal Claim Made to Tiny Oil-Rich Sheikdom in the Persian Gulf.

TEHRAN, April 7 (UP)—Iran presented Britain today with a formal claim to Bahrain, the tiny oil-rich island in the Persian gulf.

Foreign Minister Aliqhan Ardelani told a press conference the island, now under British protection, is an "inseparable part of Iran."

"Iran cannot remain inactive and silent any longer in view of recent events," Ardelani said. The Foreign Minister said he had informed the British Ambassador here and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, who visited Tehran last month.

The Iranian action threatened a new "little Cyprus" dispute, Iran, along with Britain, is a member of the five-nation Baghdad pact.

"The Iranian Government cannot recognize Bahrain as an independent British-protected sheikdom as this island is an inseparable part of Iran," Ardelani said.

"Iran cannot accept Britain's position or any government's claim to it."

But the Foreign Minister added that Iran hopes "we can settle our differences over this question amicably."

BAGHDAD PACT GETS U.S. BOOST, TOP DIPLOMAT GOING TO PARLEY

Deputy Under Secretary of State to Be Sent to Meeting in Demonstration of American Support.

By ELIE ABEL

The New York Times News Service, (Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, April 7.—In an extraordinary demonstration of support for an alliance it has refused to join, the United States is sending Loy W. Henderson to the Baghdad pact meeting at Tehran this month.

Henderson, who made his reputation in the Middle East as a good friend of the Arabs, is now deputy under secretary of state for administration. The veteran career diplomat will head an impressive United States delegation of observers at the Tehran meeting April 16-20.

Lincoln White, State Department press officer, said the caliber of the delegation was "a clear indication of United States support of the purposes of the pact." He added, however, that Washington was "not prepared to adhere to it at this time."

The assignment of Henderson to Tehran is a direct response to diplomatic pressure from Britain, the senior partner in the Baghdad alliance, which links Britain with Turkey, Iraq, Iran and Pakistan.

Apart from displeasing the Soviet Union by flanking its southern border in the Middle East, the pact has divided the Arab countries. Egypt, Syria and Saudi Arabia bitterly oppose the pact, and Jordan is pulled between the two camps.

The move to upgrade the United States observer delegation was taken by President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles as one step, short of signing up for membership, toward proclaiming the pact a major instrument of Western policy.

Mr. Eisenhower, who is to leave Washington Monday morning for a golfing vacation at Augusta, Ga., reviewed the Middle East situation with Dulles yesterday.

Supports Hammarskjöld. The State Department, later in the day, said the new violence on the Israel-Egypt border underscored the "urgency and need" of Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld's peace mission to the Middle East at the behest of the United Nations Security Council.

United States efforts to restore a measure of tranquillity in the Middle East are concentrated at this stage on the Hammarskjöld mission.

Despite heavy British pressure to join the Baghdad pact as a further step toward stability in the area, the United States has persistently refused.

Washington contends that its entry into the pact might further inflame the situation by driving the anti-Baghdad grouping of Gamal Abdel Nasser, Egypt's nationalist Premier, into a more intimate embrace with the Russians.

Recognizes Impartiality. In addition, the Administration recognizes that its attitude of "friendly impartiality" toward the Israelis as well as the contending Arab factions would be forfeit if it joined the pact.

If an Arab-Israeli settlement is to be promoted in the future, the United States must retain some influence with Egypt as well as Israel, officials said. By joining the pact under present circumstances Washington probably would alienate both Cairo and Tel Aviv, the officials added.

The Administration does recognize, however, that the Baghdad powers—Iraq in particular—want the United States to show its support in a tangible way. Iraq is said to feel isolated from its Arab neighbors, particularly since British efforts to bring Jordan into the alliance failed last winter.

Malenkov Home Singing Praises Of British Hospitality, Industry

GEORGI MALENKOV, Russia's former premier, waving farewell before boarding jet airliner at London today for return to Moscow. Flanking him are JACOB MALIN (left), Russia's ambassador to Britain, and LORD CITRINE, chairman of Britain's Central Electrical Board.

'These Wonderful People' to Welcome Top Russians, He Predicts.

MOSCOW, April 7 (AP).—Premier Georgi Malenkov returned from London today bursting with praise for the British people.

"Everyone was wonderful," the Minister of Electric Power Stations said as he stepped from the Soviet TU-104 jet airliner that brought him home.

"We saw many things, power stations and technical installations we did, but our dearest impression was the warmth of the welcome the British people gave us everywhere we went," he said.

Predict Successful Mission. In answer to a reporter's question, he said he was sure the British reception for Soviet Premier Bulganin and Communist party leader Nikita S. Khrushchev later this month would be "very, very cordial."

Malenkov overflowed with enthusiasm, too, for the sights he had seen during his three-week tour of Britain.

"It's amazing," he said. "Here's a small island with 56,000,000 people in it and every foot of it is steeped with their toil and history."

"It's all so concentrated. It is most impressive. You cannot take a step without being confronted with the industry and history of these wonderful people."

The sleek TU-104 jet, pride of the Soviet Union, landed in a mist just short of four hours after leaving London. It had streaked over the airport earlier but heavy fog forced it to circle twice before landing after the nearly 2000-mile trip.

Reporters inspect planes. Just before the big airliner roared away from the airport in London, Malenkov invited western newsmen inside to take a look at the craft.

Reporters found the Soviet airliner had one main cabin and four staterooms, all furnished much more elaborately than those seen in previous Russian planes. The stateroom passengers sit in deep armchairs with a table before them. One stateroom had a completely equipped buffet.

Malenkov read a statement which said his visit had been "very fruitful" both technically and socially.

"The friendship of the Soviet Union and Great Britain grows stronger in the interests of peace and better relations among all nations," he said.

3 FINED AS DRUNKEN DRIVERS IN COLLISIONS

Burnell Watson, Roxana, Ill., was fined $125 yesterday for driving when intoxicated and $75 for leaving the scene of an accident that occurred last Feb. 28 when his light truck struck a taxicab at Washington boulevard and Kingshighway.

The Daily Telegraph (Conservative) said if the United States refused to join Britain in a firm declaration to honor the 1950 tripartite agreement on Palestine, Britain must state "unequivocally that we will intervene unilaterally and promptly should aggression occur."

The newspaper said the purpose of such action "would be quite simply to deter aggression—surely a worthy object even in an American election year."

The Daily Herald (Labor) said "it is most urgently necessary to clear the air between Britain and the United States."

"It is a moment for vigor and blunt speaking," the Herald asserted. "It is a time for new policies and not old squabbles."

The Star, a Liberal evening newspaper, said: "If war breaks out it may cost even more than did Korea to restore peace. The moral should be clear to Democrats and Republicans alike. This is rather more important than electioneering."

30 Ways to Cut Red Hair. HONG KONG, April 7 (AP).—Red China may be a classless society but you can't tell by the haircuts. The newspaper Wen Wei Pao reports from Canton 30 hair styles are in fashion. Among them are: Worker style, student style, youth style—and, of course, official style.

U.N. SECRETARY LANDS IN ROME, SHOOTING GOES ON

ians in all were killed in the Gaza strip shelling.

The Egyptian military governor of the Gaza area, Gen. Abdullah Riad, and senior officers attended mass funeral for the dead and visited the wounded in the hospitals.

One mosque and one church also were hit by shells, municipal authorities said.

(On another Israel frontier, Israeli sources said shots were fired from Syrian territory at two fishing boats on the Sea of Galilee before dawn today. The fishermen were unhurt, the United Press said, but they abandoned their nets in hurrying out of range.)

Hammarskjöld said before leaving New York that the latest Gaza clashes "if anything, reason further for this mission and increase the significance of this decision of the Security Council."

"Under such circumstances," he added, "I feel that I may look with hope to the future and expect results, not spectacular results, perhaps not even any immediate results, but results which will bring us closer to the orderly progress which we all desire for that part of the world and our harassed friends in that region."

Hammarskjöld's first two stops in the Middle East are expected to be Beirut, Lebanon, and Cairo, Egypt. Beirut will be his base of operations.

In Paris, French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau postponed a projected trip to the Middle East to give Hammarskjöld a clear field. Pineau had planned to leave this week-end for Tel Aviv, Israel, and possibly Lebanon.

Foreign Ministers of the United States, Britain and France are to meet in Paris May 19-20 to discuss the Middle East situation.

Under a 1950 declaration, the three nations are pledged to guarantee the present borders in Palestine against alteration by force.

In Damascus, official sources said Syria notified Egypt it was "completely prepared" to carry out obligations under the Syrian-Egyptian military defense pact in the face of "new, repeated and widespread Israeli aggression on the Gaza strip area in Palestine."

The pact provides for joint military action in the event of aggression against either nation.

British newspapers, meanwhile, accused the Eisenhower Administration of "vacillating" in the Middle East and called for strong and united action by Britain and America to head off risks of open war.

Both Conservative and Laborite publications accused Washington of trying to back both parties in the Middle East dispute in an excess of election-year caution.

The News Chronicle (Liberal) declared: "Mr. Dulles, shouting incoherent advice from the sidelines and assuring both teams of his undying allegiance, cuts an exasperating figure."

The Daily Telegraph (Conservative) said if the United States refused to join Britain in a firm declaration to honor the 1950 tripartite agreement on Palestine, Britain must state "unequivocally that we will intervene unilaterally and promptly should aggression occur."

The newspaper said the purpose of such action "would be quite simply to deter aggression—surely a worthy object even in an American election year."

The Daily Herald (Labor) said "it is most urgently necessary to clear the air between Britain and the United States."

"It is a moment for vigor and blunt speaking," the Herald asserted. "It is a time for new policies and not old squabbles."

The Star, a Liberal evening newspaper, said: "If war breaks out it may cost even more than did Korea to restore peace. The moral should be clear to Democrats and Republicans alike. This is rather more important than electioneering."

BONN REFUSES TO KEEP PAYING ALLIED TROOPS

Notes Replying to Western Demand Sent to U.S., Britain and France.

BONN, April 7 (AP).—Chancellor Adenauer's government has refused the Allied demand for continued financial support of their troops in Germany.

The Foreign Ministry said German notes replying to the Allied demand were dispatched to the United States, Britain and French embassies yesterday afternoon. Allied authorities declined immediate comment.

This flat rejection will create serious financial difficulties for Britain and France and could lead to a serious dispute between the Germans and the Allies.

Britain and France have insisted—with United States support—that the Germans must continue to share the cost of maintaining their troops in this frontier area of the cold war.

The British calculate that they will need an additional $196,000,000 a year if the Germans end their financial contributions to the Allies. The French would need somewhat less. The United States would have to add $300,000,000 to its defense budget.

Under an agreement explaining on May 5, West Germany is paying $760,000,000 toward the cost of keeping the Western forces in Germany.

DATA SUBMITTED ON LINCOLN COUNTY MILITARY AIRPORT

A memorandum outlining details of a proposal that an all-military airport, to serve units now situated at Lambert-St. Louis Field, be established in Lincoln County, near Elsberry, was forwarded yesterday to the Defense Department at Washington.

A technical report on soil and other features of a 3500-acre tract proposed for the airport was included in the memorandum, addressed to Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson by Chamber of Commerce and city officials. The data, including a map sketch showing the relation of Elsberry to the St. Louis area, was prepared by the Industrial Development Department of the Chamber of Commerce.

The proposal was presented this week by a delegation of Elsberry citizens, who drove to St. Louis for the purpose. The all-military field would relieve future congestion at Lambert-St. Louis Field through transfer of the Naval Air Station, the Air National Guard and jet plane testing to Elsberry.

BOTANICAL GARDEN BLOOMS EXPECTED AT PEAK BEAUTY

Flowering plants at Missouri Botanical Garden should be at maximum beauty this weekend, and the peak will last only a few days if wind continues and warm weather returns, Hugh Cutler, associate director of the garden, said today.

Plants now in bloom outdoors include daffodils, jonquils, hyacinths, forsythia, white and red redbuds, crab apple and cherry trees, pink and white star magnolias and hawthornes. In the display house the Spring Show, arranged by Paul Kohl, floriculturist, will be on view.

The indoor display has nasturtiums, mosses, flowers from the Andes, cineraria, schizanthus and azalea. Cutler said plants at the Philadelphiad House also are flourishing at this time. The garden is open from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

ST. LOUIS BRIDGE PLAYERS LEAD IN MIDWEST CONTEST

St. Louis bridge players have forged to the front in the Midwest championship tournament being held in Dayton, O. The team of four led by Mrs. Philip Steinberg and John E. Simon, both of St. Louis; John Parrish, Centralia, Ill.; and Mrs. Mildred Cytron, former St. Louisan now living in Louisville, Ky., their team outpointed 56 others.

Mrs. John E. Simon of St. Louis and Robert Sharp, New York, tied for first place in the mixed pair competition with Mrs. I. W. Campbell and Robert Morris, both of Louisville. There were 256 pairs in this event.

PURGED EX-RED BOSS IN POLAND CLEARED, FREED

Strong Man Gomulka and Dozens of Other Beria Gang Victims Are Rehabilitated.

VIENNA, April 7 (AP).—Vladyslaw Gomulka, Communist Poland's onetime strong man who was urged for "Titoism" in 1949, has been freed from jail and rehabilitated, the Warsaw radio announced last night.

Gomulka was deputy prime minister and a political power in Poland until he went down under the purge that swept the satellites after Stalin's break with Yugoslavia.

The action was announced by Edward Ochab, first secretary of the United Polish Workers (Communist) party. He said dozens of others, including more than 20 officers, also were freed.

Ochab said the measure carried out decisions of the twentieth congress of the Soviet Communist party in Moscow to rehabilitate persons arrested by the "Beria gang" of the Polish security system.

Former Soviet secret police chief Lavrenty P. Beria was executed by the Russians in 1953 after Stalin died.

The broadcast quoted Ochab as criticizing Polish police methods which "brought about the arrest of many members of the Communist party and the population with faked evidence and bribed witnesses."

Ochab cautioned that Gomulka's release "does not mean that he was subsequently proved of his political opinions."

"We admit, however, that his arrest in consequence of the Rajk trial was unjustified."

He referred to Laszlo Rajk, former Hungarian foreign minister who was executed for "Titoism" in 1949. Hungary announced Rajk's posthumous rehabilitation last week.

Ochab said, "Among those released are more than 20 officers, including the General Stanislaw Tatar and Jerzy Kirchmayer as well as Gen. Marian Spychalski, arrested on faked charges of espionage."

Gomulka was a vice premier of the provisional government set up in Poland after World War II. As one of Russia's men he was an arch-arch of Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, backed by the Allies.

Mikolajczyk, also a vice premier in that government, was president of the Polish Peasant Party. After Communist-dominated elections in 1947, Mikolajczyk fled for his life to London.

Gomulka visited Moscow with a Polish delegation in 1948 and was received by Stalin. His power and influence grew in Poland. Within a year, however, he was reported in difficulties. He was said to have backed Yugoslavia's Premier Josip (Tito) Broz in his dispute with the Cominform countries of eastern Europe.

Before he ran into difficulties for "Titoism," Gomulka had been advocating a more independent Poland. He differed from the Soviet Union in his ideas for a social and economic system for Poland.

ARNOLD JONES APPOINTED DEPUTY BUDGET DIRECTOR

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP).—President Eisenhower picked Arnold R. Jones, Kansas educator, yesterday to be deputy director of the Budget Bureau. Jones succeeds Percival F. Brundage who recently was named chief of the bureau.

Jones is dean of financial administration at Kansas State College, an institution once headed by the President's youngest brother, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, now president of Pennsylvania State University. The salary of the deputy director of the budget is $16,000 a year.

French Fighting Algerians For Third Day in Mountains

25 Soldiers Reported Killed in Sessaw Battle—Fresh Troops Brought In by Helicopter.

ALGIERS, April 7 (AP).—French troops today fought two strong Algerian nationalist bands in the third day of a seesaw battle in the Nemetcha mountains 100 miles south of Constantine.

Fresh troops were brought up by helicopter as the French sought to dislodge the rebels entrenched in the wild terrain.

First reports said 25 to 30 French troops had been killed in the fighting.

Scattered reports of violence came from other parts of eastern Algeria, a belief grew in Paris that no negotiation is now possible with the inflamed rebels.

In Constantine, two rebels who threw a grenade into a crowded barroom, injuring four persons, were lynched by an enraged crowd before police could reach them.

14 Rebels Killed. Fourteen rebels were killed in a clash with French troops in the northern part of Constantine province near Oued Zenati. Three miles west of Constantine an Algerian policeman was killed when rebels held up a bus.

In western Algeria, rebels ambushed a military convoy near the Moroccan border. Five French soldiers were killed and four wounded.

In Paris, Robert Lacoste, French Resident Minister in Algeria, said France had five months to put down the Algerian revolt.

"I think we must find a solution of the Algerian problem before the end of the summer," Lacoste said in an interview. "We must keep in mind certain North African deadlines: I mean the French-Moroccan negotiations and the next session of the United Nations.

"So I consider that we have five months to put the situation into reverse in the zones contaminated by the rebellion. That is why I have asked for reinforcements with such insistence, not to make war but for pacification."

Troopships Arrive. Two ships carrying several thousand fresh troops from France arrived in Oran and 34 French Air Force planes left southern France en route to Algeria. The planes included 16 Mistral jet fighters.

Bad weather has prevented the French Air Force from joining the Nemetcha mountain siege, but helicopters are being used to carry up troops.

In Algiers, "Liberation fighters"—describing themselves as a secret military grouping of Communists and nationalists—issued tracts boasting of their success in seizing a truckload of French arms Wednesday.

They said their booty consisted of 120 Sten machine guns, six machine guns, 60 rifles, 84 revolvers and about 4000 rounds of ammunition. They contended the French officer commanding the escort had gone over to the resistance forces.

The French said the missing man—actually a cadet training for officers—was formerly head of a Communist party cell in Algiers.

Strong French forces carried out a mop-up operation of the area just outside Algiers where the truck was stolen. Many Communists were arrested.

gineers. Riesel said the attack on him apparently stemmed from the broadcast.

Young Dekoning, head of Local 138, said in Chicago the attack on Riesel was "very embarrassing to us insofar as he had been discussing me and my union. But I know nothing about it."

Police have put a round-the-clock guard on Miss Betty Nevins, 23, who was with Riesel at the time of the attack. She assists him with his column for the New York Daily Mirror and 192 other newspapers.

PRINCETON DEBATING GROUP INVITES ALGER HISS TO SPEAK

PRINCETON, N.J., April 7 (AP).—Alger Hiss, onetime State Department official convicted of perjury in connection with a Communist spy inquiry, has been invited to speak at Princeton University April 26.

He will be the guest of the American Whig-Clapham Society, the nation's oldest campus debating society. His topic is scheduled as "The Meaning of Geneva."

Dr. Brinckhoff said Riesel "is much better psychologically and physically. He is better than he has been for the last few days. He has some vision. He can see my fingers and my face."

Meanwhile it developed that the man who flung the acid may have slipped in and out of a policeman's grasp shortly after the attack.

An unidentified patrolman reported yesterday that he halted a man running from the scene. The man said he was fleeing from two bandits who stepped out of the shadows on West Fifty-first street and splashed acid in Riesel's face.

Meanwhile, rewards for the apprehension of the assailant climbed to more than $33,000. One for $1000 was pledged by Local 138, International Union of Operating Engineers, the same local Riesel attacked in a radio broadcast only hours before the acid assault.

The broadcasts included criticism of Joey Fay, William Dekoning and William Dekoning Jr., all convicted of extortion while holding powerful positions in the Operating Engineers.

A.A.U.P. CENSURES ST. LOUIS U. IN DISMISSAL OF DR. TUMULTY

Association Approves Without Dissent Motion Accusing University of Ignoring Tenure Principle.

St. Louis University was censured yesterday by the American Association of University Professors for ignoring a "basic principle of tenure" in the firing of Dr. Philip A. Tumulty as head of the university's internal medicine department.

The action was taken by voice vote, without dissent, at the association's forty-second annual meeting at Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson. Effect of the censure is "purely moral," association officials said, pointing out that some teachers might not be willing to accept positions at censored institutions.

Prof. Russell N. Sullivan of the University of Illinois College of Law, head of an association committee which investigated the dismissal of Dr. Tumulty, offered the motion to censure. There was no discussion.

Committee Findings. The investigating committee found that St. Louis University, in firing Dr. Tumulty in August 1954 for "administrative incompatibilities," had ignored "the basic principle of tenure generally observed by the administrations of institutions of higher learning."

The university should have given Dr. Tumulty a hearing if it considered his actions as departmental director objectionable, the committee said, following its inquiry into a controversy chiefly between him and the Sisters of St. Mary over use of service (teaching) beds in Firmin Desloge Hospital.

In its report, the committee, which made no recommendation, also was critical of Dr. Tumulty in some respects. The committee said it could not condone his concept of departmental "autonomy" and criticized his "unrealistic" insistence on immediate fulfillment of an assurance given him concerning 70 beds to be set aside for patients whose ailments would be studied by medical students.

In reviewing the controversy, the association's investigating committee came to the conclusion that the difficulty between Dr. Tumulty and St. Louis University "can be attributed largely to mismanagement by the administration of the university and by the administrative officials of the School of Medicine."

Father Reinert's Comment. In a statement issued by the association's vote of censure, the Very Rev. Paul C. Reinert S.J., president of the university, said:

"The tension and bitterness surrounding the events preceding the dismissal of Dr. Tumulty, however difficult to recast now, made a hearing of no value and undoubtedly would have resulted in injury to both sides."

"This is why the university did not investigate the hearing. It might also explain why Dr. Tumulty did not request one."

Father Reinert expressed regret that the American Association of University Professors "reached an adverse decision," but he said the university believes the association "misguided in its findings and that no course other than the one taken was, in fact, open to the university in the case of Dr. Tumulty."

Discussing the incident, Father Reinert stated:

"The university has made every effort since the dismissal of Dr. Philip Tumulty to keep the matter out of public controversy. This course was followed because of the university's belief that the events were part of the internal administration of the university."

"Secondly, because of the complicated and delicate relationships involved, public discussion could only result in injury to all sides."

"The university makes a statement at this time only because the decision of the American Association of University Professors."

STEVENSON SPEAKS TONIGHT IN E. ALTON

Public Meeting at Machinists' Center Sponsored by Unions.

Adlai E. Stevenson will address a public meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the East Alton Machinists' Center on the eve of the Illinois primary election. Stevenson's party, which will include State Representative Richard Stengel of Rock Island, Ill., unopposed for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, is scheduled to arrive in Alton on a Gulf, Mobile & Ohio train from Chicago about 4 p.m.

The group will be met by a delegation of labor leaders and Madison county Democrats who will escort the visitors to the Stratford Hotel for a private meeting and dinner.

The East Alton meeting is sponsored jointly by the Alton Trades & Labor Assembly and the Alton-Wood River Building Trades Council. Working with these organizations to bring Stevenson to the area were Madison county Democrats closely allied with Stevenson's state administration, Leonard J. Schwartz, former state director of conservation; State's Attorney Fred P. Schuman; Harold G. Talley, former assistant Attorney General, and County Judge Michael M. Kinney.

Stengel, who as a freshman legislator directed Stevenson's important highway construction program, through the Illinois House, will share the speaking platform with the former Governor.

Stevenson is scheduled to return immediately after the meeting to Chicago, where he will make a series of talks to further his candidacy in next Tuesday's state primary. He is unopposed in the presidential preference race, but backers of Estes Kefauver have been urging a write-in campaign for the Senator.

King of the Speedway. AMMAN, April 7 (AP)—King Hussein of Jordan finished first yesterday in a motor hill climb race organized by the Royal Automobile Club. Driving a Mercedes, the King covered the two-kilometer (1.2 miles) course, which included two hairpin bends, in 1 minute, 27 seconds.

fessors cannot be allowed to go unanswered.

Comments Committee. "The university believes that the committee which investigated the dispute and wrote this report, which served as the basis for the A.A.U.P. action, made a serious and honest effort to get the facts."

"However, because of the necessarily limited time at their disposal and their lack of acquaintance with the operation of the School of Medicine, it was impossible for them to come to a full understanding of the problem."

"The simple fact is that the university was faced with a loss of its teaching hospital if Dr. Tumulty were retained as director of the department of internal medicine. Since the very existence of the School of Medicine was at stake there was no alternative to the course of action taken."

"It is impossible to recreate the charged emotional environment in which these events took place two years ago, nor is it possible for an investigator, no matter how sincere or objective, to appreciate during the course of a few days' study the relationship between the School of Medicine and the Sisters of St. Mary hospital."

"This relationship, it should be pointed out, is one of the important factors in the remarkable record of the School of Medicine, both in educating physicians and providing health services for the community."

Dr. Tumulty went to St. Louis University in September 1933 as its first full-time professor of internal medicine and head of the department. Since his dismissal he has returned to the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, where he was associate professor of internal medicine when he took the post here.

In protest against his firing, 14 physicians left St. Louis University's faculty or the Firmin Desloge house staff.

FARMERS WANT SYMINGTON, SAYS FRED J. HEINKEL

Missouri Farm Leader Asserts Midwesterners Like Harriman, Kefauver Next.

United States Senator Stuart Symington is the most popular candidate for President among farmers of the Midwest, Fred J. Heinkel of Columbia, Mo., president of the Missouri Farmers Association, said last night.

In a panel discussion broadcast over KETC, the educational television station, Heinkel said Symington rates at the top of the list, with Gov. Averell Harriman of New York and United States Senator Estes Kefauver following in that order. "Symington is popular not only in Missouri but also in Wisconsin, Oklahoma, Iowa and other Midwest states," Heinkel said. "He is a highly capable man, and when he was in business he was a good business man. On agricultural matters in Congress he has voted to the satisfaction of the farmers."

In answer to a question from the panel, Heinkel said farmers do not look with much favor on Adlai Stevenson as a presidential candidate. Heinkel, whose organization has a membership of more than 140,000, predicted that if President Eisenhower and Symington are the presidential candidates, "Symington would pull the farm votes—no doubt about it."

"I think farmers will vote heavily Democratic in this election," he said, "and if Symington is the Democratic candidate he will get the farm support."

The present "depression in agriculture" is the only issue farmers are interested in, he said, adding, "It's a bad time for them. They have been hit in the pocketbook and need to have some money in the bank."

In answer to another question concerning the attitude of farmers toward Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson, he said "farmers feel he has spent too much time in the South and the farm surplus." He also said he does not think Benson is an asset to the Eisenhower Administration.

Panelists with Heinkel were Paul G. Steinbicker, professor of agriculture at the University of Illinois; Henry J. Schmandt, associate professor of government, and Jasper W. Cross, associate professor of history, all of St. Louis University. Louis T. Iglehart Jr. was moderator.

BANKERS HAVING BIG STATE FUNDS AIDED DEMOCRATS

as a "50 per cent April-fool joke."

Hocker attacked the provision of the proposed amendment which would permit the state to earn interest on only 50 per cent of its funds placed in interest-bearing time deposits in Missouri banks.

This provision also is under attack from legislators, who have pointed out that the balance of state funds fluctuates materially, and the amount of money the 50 per cent limitation would apply to would be uncertain.

"The source of all the difficulty as I see it," Hocker said, "is not the constitution at all but the 1945 opinion of a Democratic attorney general in Gov. Donnelly's first administration."

Hocker said the opinion could have been tested in court half a dozen times in the last 11 years.

"In the meantime," he added, "the state has lost $8,000,000 in interest. This is three times the amount the Governor has requested to rebuild the fire-damaged state hospital at Fulton."

Hocker spoke at a dinner preceding the Jackson County Republican convention.

TRAFFIC PENALTIES WILL BE STIFFER, JUDGE DOWD SAYS

Traffic violators were warned yesterday by Police Judge Robert G. Dowd that he intends to impose stern penalties in an attempt to reduce the number of traffic deaths and injuries. About 200 violators of traffic regulations were in the courtroom when Judge Dowd interrupted his docket to deliver the warning. He noted that 32 persons have died as the result of traffic accidents since the first of the year.

"You are all violators of traffic ordinances," he said. "We consider traffic violators important since they are the cause of accidents, and accidents, in turn, cause death."

Judge Dowd said he would increase fines, impose more workhouse sentences and revoke drivers' licenses to curb traffic accidents.

STEVENSON GOES INTO OREGON FOR WRITE-IN TEST

Announces Contest Against Kefauver — Active on Eve of Illinois Primary.

CHICAGO, April 7 (AP)—Adlai Stevenson announced today he is entering a write-in contest with Senator Estes Kefauver for Oregon's 16-vote Democratic convention delegation.

Stevenson told reporters: "I am delighted that my supporters in Oregon have decided to organize a write-in campaign" and added "I intend to take my campaign into Oregon."

He said at a press conference the May 18 contest in Oregon would be a write-in affair. No presidential candidates entered prior to the filing deadline date of March 9. The Oregon delegates will be required to support the candidate getting the largest number of write-in votes.

The former Illinois governor said he understands that Kefauver has authorized a write-in in Oregon.

Stevenson said he believes Oregon is the only state in which a delegation can be committed on the basis of a write-in vote for presidential nomination.

He said the decision to campaign actively in Oregon would compel him to change his plans, probably curtailing his California campaigning.

Busy Weekend.

Stevenson, unopposed in the Illinois Democratic presidential preference primary Tuesday, mapped a busy weekend of campaigning for a big vote in his home state.

He arranged a meeting today with party leaders of state offices, has stirred only little head-on contest, have urged write-in votes. Others mentioned as possible write-ins are Gov. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio and Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri.

Leaders of the Stevenson groups meeting in Chicago during the weekend will be guests of the former Governor of Illinois at his suburban Libertyville home Sunday. He also has arranged for meetings in suburban Highland Park, Evanston and Oak Park tomorrow.

He winds up his campaign in Illinois Monday night with a television address.

Little Excitement.

The primary, with only a few contests for nomination to state offices, has stirred only little excitement. But Stevenson, in talks at party rallies, has termed the Illinois primary "important" and urged a heavy turnout of Democratic voters.

Much meaning could be read into this year's results of the presidential preference primary, which is regarded as a popularity poll. In the 1952 primary Kefauver, the only name on the Democratic ballot, received 526,301 votes. Stevenson, who was a candidate for Governor and was not listed as a presidential choice, received 54,336 write-in votes.

Supporters of the Tennessee Democrat, who scored an upset victory over Stevenson in Minnesota last month in their first head-on contest, have urged write-in votes. Others mentioned as possible write-ins are Gov. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio and Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri.

Backers of Kefauver have denied any concerted write-in campaign, but said if the Tennessee Senator gets 10 per cent of Stevenson's vote they will consider it proof of his strength in Illinois.

MRS. W. S. HOWELL FUNERAL

Funeral services for Mrs. Wilbur Samuel Howell, member of an old St. Louis family, will be held today at Princeton, N.J. Mrs. Howell, the former Miss Charlotte Coombe, died Thursday in New York. She was 53 years old.

Mrs. Howell was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Western Bascom Coombe, and was a graduate of Washington University. Her husband is a professor of rhetoric and oratory at Princeton University. ## Citizens Committee Considering 45 Candidates for Freeholder

Executive Unit Expects to Recommend 13 to 450-Member Charter Group Monday.

Consideration of qualifications of 45 candidates who filed for election to the 13-member Board of Freeholders to study the city's charter and make recommendations for change or revision was begun today by the executive committee of the Citizens Charter Committee.

The executive group of 24 members expects to make recommendations to the larger committee, composed of more than 450 citizens, for the in-dorsement of 13 of the candidates.

The entire committee will meet Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Assembly Hall Three of Kiel Auditorium to consider the report of the executive committee.

Fifteen candidates filed yesterday, the final day. Candidates who wish to withdraw from the race must do so by 3 p.m. next Wednesday.

The persons who have filed for election as freeholders are: Mrs. Rogers Deakin, housewife, 6237 McPherson avenue; Ernest M. Potts, salesman, 5537 Lindwood avenue; John Haas, retired coal dealer, 5033 Louisiana avenue; Mrs. Frank A. Becker, secretary, 3667 Marcelline terrace; John F. X. ## POLICE WALK IN ON HOLDUP, ARREST 2

Third Robber Escapes — 9 Victims Face Gambling Charges.

A holdup at 1618 (rear) Cole street was interrupted last night by two policemen, who found nine men sitting on the floor without their trousers and shoes, while three others, armed with a pistol, a revolver and a shotgun guarded them. All were Negroes.

At the command of the officers, Sgt. Thomas Villa and Patrolman Alfred Doty of the Carr street district, the holders of the pistol and the revolver dropped their weapons, but the man with the shotgun fled through a rear door.

Pearl Johnson, one of the victims who lives at that address, told the officers he and eight friends were engaged in "a social evening" when the armed men appeared and ordered them to remove their trousers.

The robbers had removed cash from the trousers' pockets when police arrived after receiving a call that a man was flourishing a revolver. A total of $43 was recovered from one of the two armed men, who were booked suspected of robbery. Johnson and his friends

TUCKER VETOES 11 TRAFFIC BILLS AND APPROVES 8

7 of Those Signed Provide for New Stop Signs — Aldermen in Recess.

Veto of 11 traffic regulation bills passed recently by the Board of Aldermen was announced yesterday by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker after study of the measures by the city's traffic division. Because the Board is not now in session, the vetoes cannot be overridden.

The Mayor also announced approval of eight other traffic measures, seven of them providing for new stop signs and the eighth providing for the elimination of a sign on Natural Bridge avenue at Siemers lane. Where New Signs Go Up.

The new signs will be erected at the following intersections: Murdoch avenue at Wherry avenue; Commonwealth and Piccadilly avenues; Childress avenue at West Park avenue; Carter avenue at Warne avenue; Third street at Gratiot street; Farrar avenue at Twenty-fifth street; and Jefferson avenue at its intersection with Biddle and Gamble streets.

The vetoed measures included bills which would have provided stop signs at eight other intersections. The disapproved bills sought to place stop signs at the following places: Emma avenue and Park lane; Thurman and McLee avenues; Broadway at Iron street; Louisiana avenue at Pestalozzi street; Ivanhoe avenue at Lindenwood street; Hillsland avenue at McCausland avenue; Page boulevard at Arlington avenue, and Bischoff and Marconi avenues.

Other traffic measures vetoed by the Mayor included one to reduce the speed limit on seven south-west St. Louis streets to 20 miles per hour; another to prohibit a left turn off Chippewa street into McCausland avenue; and a third to change parking regulations on the east side of Sarah street.

The Mayor's veto messages said that some of the intersections required stop signs, but the bills would have placed them on streets with the heavier traffic loads. He suggested new bills be introduced to place signs on the other streets instead.

One of the bills was technically defective, and he requested a new bill be introduced for a sign at Marconi and Bischoff.

COUNTY POLICE THANK KANSAS CITY CONSULTANT

A resolution expressing the appreciation of the St. Louis County Board of Police Commissioners for the work of Maj. Raymond W. Hensley in helping to organize the St. Louis County Police Department was unanimously adopted by the commissioners at their meeting yesterday.

Hensley, who is on leave of absence from the Kansas City Police Department where he is a lieutenant, was deputy superintendent of county police for the last six months. The commissioners' resolution said: "We owe him a great debt." He will return to Kansas City Tuesday. His successor has not yet been named.

Which One Is Next?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Recently, touring Missouri House and Senate committees inspected the state's institutions, hospitals and schools in an effort to allot the $750,000 bond issue. I commend them for realizing the need for such an investigation, but isn't it a little late?

Recently fire destroyed the main building of Missouri State Hospital No. 1 at Fulton. Fortunately no lives were lost.

Why does the state sit back and wait for such tragic destruction and endangering of lives? The need for appropriations has existed for many years and the condition of our state institutions is unbelievable. There has been ample warning of the fire peril at Hospital No. 1 and at the other mental institutions. These conditions were highly criticized last year by the Missouri Fire Inspection Bureau.

Which one is next? The Missouri School for the Deaf at Fulton, part of which has been condemned for ages? The Training School for Boys at Booneville? Or maybe No. 4 at Farmington?

Will it take the destruction of another state institution or maybe the loss of lives to really move those responsible? What about it, Gov. Donnelly? C. R. Gallop? B. E. Ragland? Fulton, Mo. J. W. GAHAN.

Inconceivable Hint

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
U. S. News & World Report, a strong Eisenhower supporter, in its issue of March 23, declared: "Earl Warren, Chief Justice of the United States, has had at least a hint from the President that the Supreme Court should proceed with caution in enforcing its edict that segregation must end in the South."
It is not conceivable that the President would give any suggestion or hint to the Chief Justice of the United States as to what he should or should not do. But of course we must not forget that the Vice President recently suggested to the good people of this country that they now have a Republican as Chief Justice. Festus. ALBERT S. ENNIS.

Didn't Get 15 Pct. Increase

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
The March 23 Post-Dispatch carried a report by the Department of Labor that office workers' pay increased about 15 per cent in the last three years. I am a secretary in the office of a large corporation here, and there has been no increase in salaries (other than automatic increases to new employees) since July 1953.

So, in spite of what Mr. Eisenhower's spokesmen say about people having more take-home pay than ever before, many people received their last pay increase before he started his four-year vacation.

I notice Governor Craig of Indiana mentioned recently that "The President obviously has been grooming Nixon as his successor and has given him training that would qualify him to take over the Government during any emergency."

Certainly we don't want another four years of that kind of Administration. We are paying for a full-time, capable President, so why not have one? WHY.

As to Patriots and Terrorists

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In a recent edition you published a picture from Cyprus under the heading "Searching for Terrorists on Cyprus."

May I bring to your attention that these people the British are looking for on Cyprus are patriots not terrorists, and there are more than 400,000 of them. Cypriots are convinced by facts that the only way of getting their freedom is through both passive and active resistance.

I believe it is time for the Western Allies of Greece to revise their attitude towards the Cyprus issue, a sore that has poisoned the relations of Greece with her traditional Western Allies, and endangers the NATO defense system in the Eastern Mediterranean. GEORGE DELLAS.

A Vote for Estes

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Harriman works closely with political machines such as Tammany Hall whose integrity I would question. When he failed to make a good showing with the people in the 1952 primaries, he stayed out of them in 1956.

He won the New York governorship by a mere 10,000 votes in a state where pluralities often surpass half a million. He has played the opportunist, waiting for behind-the-scenes intrigues to secure for him the nomination he cannot get by going to the people in primaries.

Kefauver, by contrast, stands forth as a symbol of honor in a Senate tarnished by the oil scandal. He has frankly and courageously gone before the people to be judged by them.

He has shown affection for the average American. He is honored by the bitter opposition of back-room politicians, the underworld and wealthy business men who place personal greed before the national welfare and hide behind a naive and poorly informed military hero.

He is not popular with the racially prejudiced who have forgotten the kindness of Christ.

Kefauver will get my vote in November if I have to write his name on the ballot. JEFF.

Not Whether But How

No mountains trembled when the Committee for the White House Conference on Education published its final report. On the most pertinent educational issue now confronting the nation—the issue of federal aid for school construction—the committee comes out for some sort of federal program. But just about everybody seems to have reached that conclusion long ago.

Today the question is not whether but how. How big a program? How long? On what terms for state and local matching? And above all, how to settle the controversy over making federal aid conditional upon abolishing segregation?

On these questions the committee is characteristically silent. Apparently it observes the axiom that the way to lead a parade is first to find out where it is going. But in this particular case the country could have used some leadership instead of followership.

As the committee acknowledges, a school emergency does exist. The emergency is so serious that it is of the very highest importance to adopt federal aid legislation at the current session of Congress. This means that the controversy over an anti-segregation rider must be somehow resolved this year.

Attaching the rider no doubt would relieve the feelings of a great many people who are impatient with the postures struck by nullificationists, interpositionists and other self-appointed constitutional experts who are defying the Supreme Court decision. A rider could be regarded as poetic retribution for the manifesto. But it would be a mistake—first, because it would undoubtedly kill school aid legislation for this year at least, and second, because it would transfer to the political arena jurisdiction over the terms and pace of compliance with the Supreme Court school decision—a jurisdiction which the Court wisely proposed to retain for itself.

In the long run, the Supreme Court would surely hold that since local funds cannot constitutionally be used to support segregated schools, neither can federal funds be used for such a purpose. But it is better to have this judgment come from the Court than from Congress or the Executive, because the Court is best equipped to deal judiciously with the complexities and local variations of the problem.

The Committee for the White House Conference would have performed a service by grappling with these practical phases of the problem of federal aid. Now it is up to the Administration and the leaders of Congress to do so. Getting a workable school bill passed at this session should have the highest priority at both ends of Pennsylvania avenue.

Lost on the High Seas

The Americas have talked over the border some and dangerous problem of territorial waters, and from a maximum of confusion extracted a minimum of order. Meeting at Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic, the Organization of American States Conference hardly did more than undo the mischief done earlier at Mexico City. Extravagant national claims to far out on the high seas, including marine life, were left to continue damaging international relations.

At the deliberations in the Mexican capital last February, the United States cast the lone vote against a resolution which made the blue sea the only limit to territorial claims. The conference put its blessing on any claim any nation considered "reasonable." At Ciudad Trujillo the United States at least succeeded in defeating the Mexico City pronouncement and leaving the problem largely unsettled one way or another—a scant success.

The United States delegation argued at Ciudad Trujillo that claims to 200 miles and farther out threatened freedom of the seas and would cause havoc to defense systems. These sound counsels fell on deaf ears. The territorial-waters problem seems destined to get worse before enough American states will be ready to make it better. Efforts by the United States in that direction should, nevertheless, be unceasing.

As to Pencils

Doubtless everybody knows that there is no lead in a pencil, and that rubber is not an eraser. The rubber is only a binder for the grit that obliterates the mistake but never conceals the fact that it was made. And the writing material, of course, is a combination of graphite and clay. But how many know that the right clay is to be obtained only in one mine in Germany? Luckily there was plenty in this country when war broke out, considering the rate at which the armed services began to use up pencils.

In spite of typewriters, fountain pens, dictating machines and ball-points—not to mention edicts against them by arbiters of etiquette—the use of pencils continues to increase. They come, of course, in every color of the rainbow, but most people seem to feel they are not much good unless they are yellow. Anyway, the manufacturers say that's why they make 75 per cent of their output in that color. Many people also feel that they should be of red cedar. Incense cedar is better, but many manufacturers dye it to keep customers happy.

These are some things the confirmed doodler may care to reflect on the next time he picks up a nice, soft black pencil and starts to doodle away.

Just the First Jet From Moscow

Revelation that the Soviet Russian TU-104 twin-jet airliner which set London agog on arrival last March 22 was only a prototype, and not a production model, must be cheering news for British and American aviation circles.

It was to be expected that arrival of the sleek airliner in London would cause a stir. The Soviets have made much progress lately in the atomic, military and industrial fields and it has opened the eyes of the Western peoples.

Before Gen. Ivan Serov, chief of the Soviet secret police, stepped down from the TU-104 at Croydon field it had been tracked across Europe by radar at speeds exceeding 500 miles an hour.

British aviation experts who looked at the plane compared it very favorably with their own Comet series which has been in eclipse most of the time since two of them exploded in midair, killing all aboard.

The head-shaking over the TU-104 spread across the water to the United States where airlines are at least two and possibly three years away from their first commercial jet airliners. There was even worried talk that the Soviets were mass-producing the TU-104s for export. But now Moscow radio broadcasts that "the second Soviet jet airliner has been tested and is now in normal service."

Since Moscow has long enjoyed boasting of its prowess in all fields, and has laid claim to the invention of practically everything since the wheel, it is difficult to understand why it has reassured the world that it really is not ahead in the jet airliner race.

The alarm caused by arrival of the TU-104 has done no harm in Britain or America. It has served as another warning to those who have so often underestimated Soviet Russia. The West now knows it will have to keep on its toes if it is going to beat the Russians in the field of jet airliner production.

Riddle of Foreign Aid

When he appeared before the Advertising Council in Washington last week, President Eisenhower found himself making an impromptu speech. It was about our national responsibility to aid underdeveloped areas, about the need for building understanding with the people of such lands, about the futility of applying arms and armaments to the solution of their problems.

It was quite an impressive speech. It showed that foreign aid must be much on the President's mind, and that he is sharply aware of the new kind of challenge which the Soviet Union is posing when it woos the uncommitted millions of Asia and the Middle East with promises of aid, offers of friendship, support for national revolutions and independence, identification with local cultures and aspirations.

Speaking of the powerful drive in former colonial areas for rapid industrialization, and of how the Russians try to capitalize on this desire by offering help in building steel mills or dams, the President said:

Let us not forget for one instant that just arms and armaments alone can never take us forward—they will merely defend what we have got. But when you talk about something that promotes a business arrangement—trade—when you can talk about something that proposes a better understanding between us and the people of the Middle East or the people of Africa, or anybody else, then you are talking about something constructive, something that yields results over the years to come.

It will not be merely something essentially sterile and negative so far as our capacity for raising human standards is concerned. We will not be merely acting like a policeman to protect what we already have. Of course protection is necessary. But let us not make the ignorant, uninformed decision that only in armaments are we going to find the solution of our foreign problems.

Shining through the loose grammar and prolixity of an unheeded speech is a seemingly strong conviction on the President's part that the new struggle with the Soviet Union is an economic, a political, a non-military struggle, to be waged with such weapons as steel mills and dams and technical co-operation rather than with planes and tanks.

Why is it, then, that the new foreign aid program which his Administration sent to Congress asks three billion dollars for shipment of military goods abroad, and only 1.9 billion for economic aid, much of which is confined to countries where a military assistance program is also operating?

Why is it that in terms of increases over last year's funds, the Administration is asking for a 2-billion-dollar rise in military aid, but only a 200-million-dollar rise in economic aid?

If the challenge is now primarily economic, why increase military forms of foreign aid 10 times as much as non-military forms?

Speaking of Alternatives . . .

County Assessor Deuser's announcement that he will seek a fifth term ought to stimulate some hard thinking by leaders of the county's Republican and Democratic central committees.

Republican Chairman Norman C. Parker and his committee certainly owe the members of the county G.O.P. an alternative to Mr. Deuser. As a Republican the Assessor is their baby. April 24 is the last day for filing for the party nomination, so there is not much time to persuade an acceptable candidate to run against him.

Democratic Chairman Ralph Devereaux and his group also have an important party responsibility in this area, perhaps even more so in the light of the special circumstances surrounding Mr. Deuser's conduct of the office over the last 15 years. The county grand jury declared the Assessor and his staff were "derelict" in not correcting irregularities in the county tax base. In general these require newer residents to carry more than their fair share of the tax load.

If the Democrats ever hope to win in St. Louis county they must offer candidates of quality. A first-class Democratic candidate for Assessor would provide a real alternative next November in the event the Republican county organization defaults and Mr. Deuser wins the G.O.P. nomination without opposition.

For Prudence, Not Sensations

Since the Missouri statutes do contain rather broad rules against the publication of obscene and lurid matter, Circuit Judge Michael J. Scott was within his powers in urging the grand jury to investigate objectionable "comics." No doubt his service in Juvenile Court has made him particularly aware of the threats to mental health and the anti-social effects which may stem from this source.

Some sad mistakes have been made in other communities in efforts at crime comic regulation. These were kept in mind in the drafting of the St. Louis law. It contains special safeguards not to be found in the state laws, and its administration is in the hands of a board of review, rather than directly in those of the police. Further, this board has assumed the positive task of promoting the wider circulation of acceptable juvenile books and publications.

The board is functioning with quiet restraint, instead of seeking headlines. A conviction has been obtained and an appeal is pending. The grand jurors need first to inform themselves about what already is being done.

On Robson St. and Elsewhere

It was a "victory" that a white mob on Robson street in Detroit went against John W. Rouse, 70 years old, and four members of his family. Simply because of a rumor that the family was Negro, which Mr. Rouse denied, the mob stoned his house and the family has agreed to sell out and move.

It was a victory for stupidity and prejudice and emotional intolerance everywhere, not just on Robson street, and not just in Detroit, or in the North or in the South. And it recalls what Adlai Stevenson said a month ago:

Before we cast a stone at Alabama, it might be well for those of us who live in some of the great Northern cities to ask ourselves, in candor, how the Negro minority is faring in our own communities. Racial discrimination in some degree is still a fact of life for the great majority of our Negro citizens who live outside the North. It consigns them to segregated neighborhoods. It denies them full employment opportunities—and it often confronts them with the naked face of prejudice they knew in the region from which they migrated.

Today's Mirror of Public Opinion shows that the "naked face of prejudice" is at its worst in the South. It is worse in our Southern states than in the North. But there is no satisfaction for Northerners in the gradations of intolerance. Let them look at Robson street, Detroit, Mich., in these United States.

"TSK, TSK—SOMEBODY SHOULD DO SOMETHING ABOUT THAT"

—From the Washington Post.

The Tragedy of Father Huddleston

Between Book Ends

The Mirror
Public Opinion

Recall of Anglican priest from South Africa because of his work for natives, says editor, is much like end of Jesuit effort to bring security to Paraguay Indians; "apartheid" is a fraud; if Christians do not oppose it, others may drown it in blood.

Kingsley Martin in The New Statesman and Nation, London

Those who would understand the tragedy of Father Huddleston must read his book. They should also see a remarkable play now being performed at the Haymarket Theatre. Both end in the triumph of evil over Christianity and for almost identical reasons. The play is set in 18th century South America and the South African tragedy is being enacted this very day and very week.

In "The Strong Are Lonely" (the original—and far better—French title was "On Earth as It Is in Heaven") we are taken to the Jesuit state which, in historical fact, brought a measure of love, well-being and security to about 150,000 South American Indians who would otherwise have been enslaved by Spanish traders and planters.

This comparatively happy communal state was destroyed by order of the King of Spain who listened to those whose interests were damaged when Indians were treated as human beings. The Father Provincial in charge of this revolutionary attempt to make people both happy and good, is prepared for armed resistance to the King rather than betray into slavery those who utterly trust him. He surrenders because as a member of the Society of Jesus he must obey his Superior.

No Utopia in Johannesburg

In 1949 Father Huddleston was appointed Provincial of the Community in South Africa. "He had devoted his life to the welfare of his people, and like his Jesuit predecessor, was ready to risk all against the State on their behalf, but has been compelled by his oath of obedience as a member of the Anglican Order of the Resurrection to abandon those who looked to him as their only friend. Nothing else than the oath of obedience, he writes, "could have torn me away from Africa at this moment."

Unlike Wilberforce, who thought that to fight against slavery was part of Christianity, the Archbishop of Canterbury held that Father Huddleston was wrong to meddle with politics. Unlike the earlier Father Provincial of the play, Father Huddleston could not set up any kind of Utopia in Johannesburg. He merely fought, as he says, with his tongue and his pen against a frank and deliberate policy of imposed servitude. The South African Government has not hidden its anti-Christian and inhuman purpose. Dr. Verwoerd, the Minister of Native Affairs, goes no further than Dr. Malan or Mr. Strijdom when he says that the African there can be no place "in any European society above the level of certain forms of labor."

Africans Must Carry a Pass

Apartheid, it should be noticed is fraudulent as well as evil. "The certain forms of labor" required of the Africans are essential to Europeans and destroy any reality in apartheid. The African cannot live apart even if he wished. Every African must carry a pass; more than half the time of the police and the courts is taken up in fining and jailing Africans who have forgotten, mislaid or failed to renew their passes. The African who attempts to flout the color bar is imprisoned or flogged.

Recent legislation is aimed at depriving the vast majority of Africans of any education except that minimum which will enable them to work as servants or manual laborers. Father Huddleston is right that the church's acceptance of the abolition of the measure of real education offered by the churches to the Africans is the very worst example of Christian cowardice. A series of laws, unparalleled except by the Nuremberg legislation in Nazi Germany, has been passed in the last few years; the suppression of Communism Act, Criminal Law Amendment Act, the Public Safety Act, and the Native Urban Areas Act, have, as Father Huddleston says, made the African a prisoner in his own town.

Father Huddleston himself worked in Sophiatown, the one location where, by an accident, the Africans actually owned their plots of ground. He found it an exciting and wonderful place. On the excuse that it was a slum, Sophiatown is now being razed to the ground. The chief reason for destroying it was that the white residential area had so far expanded that some European houses were not removed from African shanties by more than the distance of a barbed wire. Also the natural location of Sophiatown had physical aspects attractive to real estate agents.

The Total Denial of Love

It was this act of robbery, and forcible removal of people he loved by police with tommy guns, that finally showed Father Huddleston the reality of the police state. Incidents of extreme police brutality and European contempt for the law (in spite of the honorable efforts of some judges in contrast to most magistrates) are scattered through Father Huddleston's book. A European can flog an African to death and receive a light jail sentence.

Father Huddleston rightly explains that apartheid is hell, not only in the colloquial, but in the theological sense. It deliberately sets a great gulf between man and man; it is the total denial of love between human beings.

Because he believed in love and sought to create conditions in which Christianity could be something else than hypocrisy Father Huddleston offended. He did what he could. He worked night and day as a priest. He tried to prevent youths under his charge from becoming troists—or as we should say, hoodlums or teddy-boys—and at the same time to bring home to Europeans that it was they who were responsible for the terrifying increase of violent crime since it was they who deprived young men of any normal outlet.

For One Glimpse of Heaven

That is the last thesis that the advocates of apartheid can stomach, since their case falls to the ground if they cannot persuade themselves that Africans are by nature inferior.

With Father Huddleston's recall, which was obviously necessary if those in hell were to be deprived of any glimpse of Heaven, few Europeans are left to work actively against servitude. Africans will have to find their own Moses to lead them; in course of time they will, if only because industry will need educated and skilled Africans. The Europeans of South Africa will not be able forever to maintain a slave state in isolation, though their attempt may drown Africa in blood.

It is not the least of Father Huddleston's sorrows—and of mine too, though I do not share his faith—that those who liberate the African people will not be Christians either in my sense or in his.

ON SUBSIDIZING FOOTBALL.

From the Grand Rapids (Mich.) Herald.

A college alumnus who wants to help his alma mater hunt down the best football talent must do it hereafter without help from Uncle Sam, which means all the rest of us—including the alumni of his school's biggest rival. He can still contribute to alumni and "booster" organizations whose purpose is to recruit athletes, but the Internal Revenue Service says he can no longer deduct his donation from his taxable income. This should please everybody, from the old lady who never knew she was subsidizing football to the rabid grads who always suspected the biggest recruiting spending was being done by the other fellow.

Benton on Russia

BRITANNICA BOOK OF THE YEAR, 1955, edited by Walter Yust. (Encyclopedia Britannica, 937 pp., $12. limited edition, $25.)

The Britannica yearbook of 1955 events includes a timely 32-page article, with pictures, on "The Voice of the Kremlin" by William Benton, former Senator from Connecticut, launcher of the Voice of America and now publisher of the Encyclopedia Britannica. Benton, who visited Russia and its satellites last year, describes in detail Russia's communications machinery, emphasizing techniques of influencing its own people. His concise, readable report also gives a cross-section of Soviet life, shows a definite grasp of Communist ideological motivation. His warnings should jar the complacency of even an election year.

Russia, it is pointed out, has made amazing progress in education, now is training twice as many students, at higher levels, as the United States. Its battalions of technicians, who can be ordered any place, could swing the balance in the "competitive co-existence" struggle for Africa and the undeveloped countries. It is imperative, Benton warns, that we supply these areas with economic aid and experts also trained in the liberal arts and traditions of democracy.

While the Communists, the author says, have not succeeded in changing human nature, the third Red generation seems to be an indoctrinated, controllable mass. Progress is being made in directing the satellites, where Western influence is waning. Here, the United States should not give up hope, should continue short-range efforts as "the long-range interest of these captive peoples" is "a major goal" of our foreign policy.

Will increasing education in Russia undermine faith in Communism by encouraging independent and critical thinking? Benton is inclined to disagree with Allen Dulles's belief that it may. Dulles is head of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Benton thinks Russia shows signs of combining heavy indoctrination and high quality scientific and technical training, a formula that could be more dangerous to us than the hydrogen bomb. He found Soviet leaders highly capable, but ignorant in some key fields. They are tough and aggressive, indoctrinated zealots who believe they can "conquer the world with ideas." Having made great gains by emphasizing "words not deeds," they are now starting to perform deeds.

The author favors continuing efforts to bring straight news to the Soviet people, bringing Red journalists to this country, insisting the Western position be fairly presented, negotiations to permit Western periodicals to be distributed in Russia, constant pressure to prevent jamming of our broadcasts. He favors Secretary of State Dulles's idea of exchanging radio programs on domestic networks. SAM LAMBERT.

Adventure on Oregon Trail

YOUNG BILL FARGO, by Meta Lohme Frazier. (Longmans, Green, 202 pp., $2.75.)

When young Bill Fargo's mother died of the fever and his father was drowned at the Snake crossing, he left his small sister in charge of the Allenbys and struck out ahead of the wagon train, making his way alone on the Oregon trail to seek his older brother in Walla Walla. Chuck Bolton, whose father has been mistreating him, follows Bill and together the two boys have many adventures, including a brush with Indians and a run-in with a gang of murderous robbers.

A delightful story for young readers of the Oregon trail and the Northwest country, with an authentic historical background. ARMAND W. REEDER.

HAMMARSKJOLD HAILS U.N. MOVE IN MIDDLE EAST

Says His Mission Comes at Dangerous Moment—Points to China Success.

By MILT FREUDENHEIM
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch
Special Dispatch, Copyright 1956.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., April 7.—Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold believes his trip to the war-threatened Israel-Arab area comes "at the dangerous moment."

It is very, very good that at just this time, a new determination is being manifested," he said.

Hammarskjold reviewed his task yesterday before embarking for Rome on the first leg of a mission to the Middle East ordered by unanimous vote of the United Nations Security Council.

After eight years of uneasy armistice initiated by U.N. mediators Folke Bernadotte (who was assassinated) and Ralph Bunche, the U. N. returns to the Middle East in an active role.

Hammarskjold drew on his favorite sport—mountain climbing—for a figure of speech to describe his conception of the position in the search for world peace.

Dangerous Stage. "We are in the most awkward and dangerous stage at the beginning of the second half of a climb. There is no (summit) peak in view at all."

"This is the moment when you start feeling tired," he continued. "You may get demoralized."

"In climbing, it is the dangerous moment. It is very, very good that at just this time a new determination is being manifested."

Hammarskjold compared his mission with his 1955 success in securing release of United States flyers held captive by Communist China after a dramatic trip to Peking.

Both missions, he said, carry "A1 importance" and require nearly all his energy as Secretary-General "temporarily," but they are only fragments from a global perspective.

"In this job, you have to develop awareness of all the sore spots of the world body," he said.

Hammarskjold said the Middle East and China missions are alike only in their A-1 priority and in his own feeling about them as primarily "human" problems.

"You get switched down from the level of abstraction to very human terms," said the Swedish Ph. D. and political economist.

Concerned Over People. "In three years as Secretary-General, I have found the color of my reaction changing, increasingly to an emphasis on the thought of the individual involved."

"I have to function in very big political settings. But instead of seeing things as so many chess problems, I start thinking about people."

"It is not a question of who did what. But for heaven's sake, let's get somewhere."

In other words, a man fatally shot on a disputed frontier is dead, no matter who shot him.

Hammarskjold summed up his philosophy: "The Secretary-General is the representative on the political-talk level for the anonymous sufferer everywhere."

FUNERAL TO BE MONDAY FOR ALBERT A. FRANKLIN

Funeral services for Albert A. Franklin, former president of an interior decorating firm bearing his name, will be Monday at 10 a.m. at the Lupton undertaking establishment, 7233 Delmar boulevard, University City, with burial in Lake Charles cemetery.

Mr. Franklin, 68 years old, died yesterday following an operation at St. Mary's Hospital. He lived at 16 Garden lane, Kirkwood. He founded the firm, which specialized in home furnishing and decoration, in 1930. He sold the business at 4652 Maryland avenue in 1954 when he retired because of ill health.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Lois Franklin, and two daughters, Mrs. Arthur Brauer Jr. and Mrs. Frederick Turner.

Milton Eisenhower at Meeting. WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, the President's youngest brother, attended a Cabinet meeting at the White House yesterday.

Milton, president of Pennsylvania State University, frequently advises the Chief Executive on farm matters.

KEFAUVER SAYS STEVENSON IS SLINGING MUD

Asserts He Is Talking
Nonsense 'in Manner

By JOHN T. STEWART
Church Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A former American woman missionary to China will be the featured speaker at the spring meeting of the St. Louis Presbyterian Society Friday at Webster Groves Presbyterian Church, Lockwood and Gore avenues.

Mrs. Elroy M. Smith, who left China in 1950, will speak at 11:20 a.m.

The Presbyterian Society includes women's groups from 56 churches of the St. Louis Presbytery. Mrs. Neal C. Davis of 539 North and South boulevard, University City, is president.

Mrs. Smith served in a mission post at Ningpo, shipping and commercial center on the China coast, it was the oldest Presbyterian mission in all China, having been started in 1844.

The war with Japan interrupted Mrs. Smith's evangelistic, kindergarten and primary school work. She and her husband were interned in a camp in Shanghai for several months. They were repatriated in 1943 and three years later they were back in Ningpo, beginning the task of restoring their mission.

But the rapid advance of the Communists, their occupation of Ningpo in 1949, and subsequent bombings of the city by Nationalist planes compelled the Americans to leave again.

Mrs. Smith tells of a communion service held in Ningpo at night when the city lights were off because of bombings and the church elders had to flash electric torches on the trays of bread and wine as they passed them to the communicants. A Christmas tree was put up in the mission and Christmas was celebrated in the midst of anti-aircraft fire and bomb explosions. Mrs. Smith fed Chinese children their one meal a day in a welfare center.

Since 1953, Mrs. Smith has been doing promotional work for the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.

Other speakers at the Friday meeting will include Mrs. Leven D. Gray, 1307 Highland terrace, Richmond Heights, synodical president of the Presbyterian Society, and the Rev. Dr. Donald E. Zimmerman, executive secretary of the St. Louis Presbytery.

The meeting will close with the installation of officers. Mrs. Davis's term as president runs another year.

CATHOLIC LAYMEN PLAN COMMUNION-BREAKFAST

More than 1000 Catholic laymen are expected to attend the twenty-third annual communion and breakfast of the Laymen's Retreat League tomorrow.

Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter will celebrate the mass at St. Joseph's Church, Eleventh and Biddle streets, at 8 a.m. The sermon will be given by Msgr. William F. Mullally, pastor of St. Mary Magdalen Church.

Bishop Charles H. Helmsing will be guest of honor at the breakfast at 9:15 a.m. at the Sheraton-Jefferson Hotel. The speaker at the breakfast meeting will be Dr. John V. King of St. Louis University School of Medicine, and vice president of the retreat league.

Joseph A. Glynn Jr. is president of the league.

the St. Louis area today opened a two-week Sunday school
clinic at the new Tower Grove
Baptist Church, Tower Grove and Magnolia avenues.

Forty-eight religious education specialists, including the entire staff of the Baptist Sunday School Board of Nashville, Tenn., have come to St. Louis to lead the intensive training.

"This is the greatest concentrated effort in specialized training of Sunday school workers ever offered by Baptist churches of the St. Louis Association," according to the Rev. D. Marion Ferguson, chairman of public relations of the clinic. He is pastor of Fairview Baptist Church, Jennings.

During the two-week clinic will start at 2 p.m. and evening sessions will be held from 7 to 9:15 p.m.

Southern Baptist Convention leaders who will take part in the St. Louis training schools include the following members of the Sunday School Board, Nashville, Tenn.: the Rev. Dr. Porter Routh, the Rev. Dr. James L. Sullivan, the Rev. Dr. H. E. Ingraham, the Rev. Dr. W. A. Harrell, Ralph E. Longshore, the Rev. Dr. Joe W. Burton, editor of Home Life magazine, Nashville, the Rev. Dr. W. Storer of Tulsa, Okla.; past president of the Southern Baptist Convention; the Rev. Earl Harding, executive secretary of the Missouri Baptist State Convention, Jefferson City, and the Rev. Arthur Hicks, state Sunday school secretary.

Afternoon sessions of the clinic will start at 2 p.m. and evening sessions will be held from 7 to 9:15 p.m.

Lewis Stars as DeSoto Is 2nd In State Meet

By Harold Tuthill
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff
COLUMBIA, Mo., April 7.—Glenn Lewis, De Soto High School, last night gave the big boys in the state something to shoot at when they run in today's Class A indoor track meet here.

Lewis, the one-man gang from the mineral area who piled up enough points to win the Marine Corps Reserve-sponsored de-cathlon meet at the Public School Stadium last June, was responsible for 26 1/2 of the Dragon's 37 1/2 points.

He won both hurdles, and set one record doing it, captured the broad jump, ran anchor on the De Soto relay team which finished fifth and tied for third in the pole vault.

In spite of that tremendous performance, however, O. N. Hunter's Dragons were nosed out for first place honors in Class B by Harry Darr's Caruthersville team which tallied 44.5 points. Brookfield the defending champion, was third with 21 and Crystal City, also from the mineral rear was fourth with 18.

For track purposes, Class B school are those with an enrollment between 200 and 499. Those with 500 or more, such as University City, the defending champion, will have 18 of 23 indoor meets, will compete in the Class A relay team in the Class A House late this afternoon.

Four new records set.
Four new Class B records were set and two more equalled and Lewis had a hand in changing two of the six figures. He ran the 60-yard low hurdle final in 7.8, lowering the mark of 7.8, which he owned with four others.

Lewis was clocked at 7.9 in the preliminaries of the high hurdles, a mark which he tied a year ago after it had been set originally by Harold Carter of Lee's Summit in 1948. Lewis won the final in eight seconds flat.

Glenn's winning distance in the broad jump was 21 feet, 1 1/4 inches. He had scoring help from teammate Nate Dennis, who took the high jump with a leap of 6 feet, 3 1/4 inches.

Jim Leslie, a slight 17-year-old, will turn 18 Sunday, led Caruthersville to its first indoor title. Darr's Tigers were second by two-thirds of a point in the 1955 event. Then they had 26 1/2 points to 27 for Brookfield.

Leslie, who tied the 60-yard dash with 6.4 in the preliminaries, powered the Tigers to two relay victories and Caruthersville set records in both. The time for the half mile was 1:38.8, as compared to the old mark, 1:39, by Cameron High in 1931. That was the oldest indoor mark still on the books.

DeSoto's Mark Falls.
The mile relay team, which saw Leslie leading off, was timed in 3:34.4, bettering De Soto's 1954 mark of 3:43.8.

Those who teamed with Leslie were Bob Bartholomew, George Cook and Morris Patterson on the mile Batton-Patterson combination and Cliff Edger, Gerald Clayton and George Hollowell on the half-mile quartet.

The other mark to be erased came in the shotput. Dick Doehring of Brookfield, put the iron ball 52 feet 4 1/4 inches, breaking the record of 51 feet 7 1/4 inches set by Mike McAllister of the 1954 De Soto team.

One event—the pole vault—resulted in a tie for first between Bob Barryhill of Cameron and Larry Neesley of Wentworth De Soto's Lewis and Bill Croft of Maryville. The best

Miller Shines In Beaumont's 4-1 Triumph

By John J. Archibald
At Beaumont they are already considering their chances of helping establish a sports tradition. For the past two years the team that won the state high school basketball tournament has gone on to win the state baseball championship a few months later. Cape Girardeau and Joplin were the double winners, so now that Beaumont has the basketball trophy cases the Blue Jackets are thinking about the upcoming baseball tournament.

The Jackets' chances looked considerably brighter yesterday as letterman Bob Miller appeared to be the strong No. 2 pitcher that a successful team must have. Miller allowed just three infield hits and struck out nine batters as Beaumont defeated McBride, 4 to 1, in a six-inning game at Sherman Park.

Earlier in the week Beaumont had opened its season with a 9-2 victory over a veteran Rite-run team. Dert Barth fired a ball through that one.

Both Barth and Rich Krueger, Beaumont's shortstop, were starters on the state champion basketball team. Outfielder Ollie Sweeney and First Baseman Larry Goudy were basketball reserves, and that is about the same number of duplications that Cape and Joplin had on their winning squads.

McBride Pitcher Larry Scher pitched well, giving five scattered hits, but inept fielding by the young Mick team enabled Beaumont to score three unearned runs.

The search for challengers for defending Public League champion Beaumont in the race that starts next Friday is a difficult one at this early stage. Guinn in Star Role.

Last year's second place team, McKinley, after a so-so week, took a defeat yesterday when a sophomore pitcher took over in the first inning and handcuffed St. Francis de Sales in the five and one-third innings he worked. The young reliever was Kenney Guinn.

Guinn relieved Jim Harrod after St. Francis got three runs in the first inning. Guinn struck out 11 batters and walked only three as McKinley went on to win, 6 to 3. Harrod, who went to the outfield, had a home run later on.

Normandy again looked like the power in the Suburban League as it belted John Burroughs, 9 to 6. Bob Meyers, Pitcher Jim Willenborg and Jack Welch had home runs for the Vikings against the Cardinals. Yesterday the off-stopped-on Tigers subdued Beaumont in a dual track meet, 10 1/2 to 8 1/2.

Some of Beaumont's better boys were away at the state meet, but that detracted only slightly from the joy among Coach Earl DeLoe's team. The Solderan seniors won, 7 1/2 to 3 1/2, while Beaumont's juniors came out on top, 81-35.

Julian Tate of Solderan won the 100 and 220, while Walter Burdick won the 440, 880 and 1,760. Solderan's Carl Parker of Solderan won the senior 440 and 880.

Washington Tech defeated Southwest, 129-44. Donald Herd took the senior 100, 220 and 440 for Tech, while Walter Burdick won the 880 and 1,760. Tech won the 100 and 220 and ran the winning 880 relay team.

Wally Rhodes of Afton garnered 23 points all by himself, but his team finished second in a triangular meet. Douglas of Webster Groves had 20 points, Afton 44 and Pattonville 21. Rhodes was first in the 100, high jump, shotput, and broad jump, and was second in the 220.

DeBourgh swamped Bayless, 124-60 1/2, despite a 20-point performance by Bill Rung of Bayless. Rung, a freshman, won the junior 100, 440, discus and 120 low hurdles.

Former Webster Stars In Debuts With Tiger Varsity Grid Squad
COLUMBIA, Mo., April 7.—Three rookies will be in the starting lineup as the Missouri Tiger football team has a game-like scrimmage today, the first of the spring football practice.

Hank Kuhlman and Charles James, who teamed with the Webster Groves Statesmen two years back, will play at opposite halves and Don Chadwick of Independence or Pete Jensen of University City will play right guard on a team otherwise composed of veterans. James will be at fullback as Statesman and through last fall's freshman season.

The two Webster backs will work with Jim Hunter at quarterback and Gene Roll at fullback. Other veterans in the starting lineup will include Bill Craig and Don Hopkins, ends; Frank Czupla and Bob Lee, tackles; Jim Martin, guard, and Carl Osterloh, center.

Harris Track Today.
Lincoln University of Jefferson City, defending champion, and Southeast Missouri Teachers of Cape Girardeau are the leading title candidates in the eighth annual Harris Teachers College's track and field meet today at the Public Schools Stadium. Prelims start at 2 p.m. with the finals a half hour later. Other schools entered besides host school Harris are: Principia, McKendree, Washington U., Concordia and Greenville.

Baseball Clinic.
Seven former major league players and Coach Irvin Utz of Washington U. will serve on the "faculty" of the Greater St. Louis Athletic Association's annual baseball clinic today at the Bears' Liggett Field.

His Helper Is Injured When Truck Hits Pole—Woman Loses Foot Under Streetcar

Harry L. Feldmann, 4354 Gertrude avenue, was killed and Hugh R. Brown, 2840 Olive street, was injured seriously last night when a Lammert Furniture Co. truck in which they were riding crashed into a utility pole beside U. S. Highway 50, one mile east of Union, Mo.

The truck, driven by Feldmann, had gone out of control on a sharp curve. Feldmann, 51 years old, was thrown out. Brown, 47, a helper, was taken to St. Francis Hospital at Washington, Mo. The two men were returning after making a delivery at Union, 50 miles southwest of St. Louis.

Mrs. Mary Weedon, 57-year-old saleswoman, suffered amputation of the left foot when she was struck by a Hodiomast streetcar from which she had alighted at Belt avenue last night. She is in serious condition in City Hospital.

Police said Mrs. Weedon, a widow, was on her way to her home, 947 Belt avenue. She walked in front of the car after leaving the front door, and the operator, Robert Quinones, 5205 Paulian place, continued eastward.

Mrs. Weedon was found lying on the right-of-way by Arthur Hartup, 5513 Cabanne avenue, who also alighted from the car. Her foot had been severed above the ankle, and she had suffered head and internal injuries. Quinones, questioned later, said he was unaware there had been an accident.

Mrs. Weedon's shoe was found in the undercarriage of the streetcar. She was unable to make a statement.

BEAUMONT WON'T ACCEPT PRESENT FARM MEASURE
The bill would establish the soil bank Mr. Eisenhower recommended to boost farmers' income through federal payments while at the same time avoiding overproduction. It also would require higher, rigid price supports and other provisions which both Mr. Eisenhower and Benson have fought.

Ellender called it "a fair bill" and said it would help the farmers.

"If we can get this through the House and Senate next week and the President signs it quickly, farm income should go up 800 to 850 millions this year," he said. He served as chairman of the conference group which rewrote the measure, but the differing farm bills passed by the two houses.

Two of the five Senate conferees refused to sign the agreement. Senators George Aiken (Rep.), Vermont, and Spessard Holland (Dem.), Florida, say they expect a presidential veto of the omnibus bill unless the House or Senate orders its revision.

They contend it is too late for the Administration soil bank plan to do much good this year. The plan calls for special benefit payments to farmers who undertake the allotments of cotton, wheat, corn and other crops now in heavy surplus.

Ellender disputed this. "Even if farmers have already planted wheat and other crops they could plow this up or clip or mow it to qualify for diverted acreage," he said.

Funds Authorized.
Ellender noted that the bill authorized $750,000,000 each for this and the next three years under the acreage reserve and another $450,000,000 for 10 to 15 years under the conservation reserve plan of the soil bank.

The acreage reserve plan would apply to land actually used for production of surplus crops. The conservation reserve is a longer-range program for planting trees and grass.

Only minor additional revisions were made in the bulky compromise bill. The five House conferees and three Senate conferees signed it. It now goes to the government printers along with a detailed report explaining its provisions.

Copies will be available for members of Congress when they return Monday from a 10-day Easter vacation.

Cooley said House action probably would come Wednesday after an hour of limited debate. He predicted approval there.

A longer floor fight is certain in the Senate under its rules of unlimited debate.

2 BANK ROBBERS SEIZED, $62,204 LOOT RECOVERED

FLINT, Mich., April 7 (AP)—Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and Flint police flushed three robbers from their one-room hideout in Flint today, capturing two of them and recovering the $62,204 seized in a daylight bank holdup yesterday.

The FBI said Dave Felkes, armed with a nickel-plated revolver, was still at large in the area. Police feared he may be holding some neighborhood family as hostage. They made a house-to-house check. He escaped amid a flurry of gunfire.

The two captured robbers were identified as John Aikes and George Ballin, both of Chicago.

Police said the three dashed into the east side branch of the Citizens Commercial & Savings Bank before noon yesterday, scooping money out of four tellers' cages while they held the bank staff at bay with pistols.

Police said they received a tip last night from an undisclosed source and immediately set up a stakeout of a two-apartment home at 3402 Lewis boulevard.

When they entered the house, they found Aikes huddled in a basement coal bin. An officer checking a two-car garage at the rear saw a blanket move in the back seat of an automobile parked there.

Felkes leaped from the car, climbed a fence and escaped. Ballin stayed under the blanket where officers also found a laundry bag containing all the money taken in the robbery.

A witness, Sheldon Teachtout, who lives next door to the home where the robbers were found, said he heard three shots. He grabbed his year-old daughter and ran for shelter.

Two bullets thudded into the wall of his house and a third broke a kitchen window in the home where the robbers stayed.

The robbers rented one of two apartments in the home, owned by Henry Schmidt. It is only a few feet from the scene of the robbery.

Police lost track of the robbers less than an hour after the robbery when they switched from a stolen automobile to another car.

BUSINESS SAVED, LOYAL EMPLOYEES, U.S. LOAN CITED
SHELBYVILLE, Ind., April 7 (UP)—William Spiegel is back in business today and convinced that miracles still happen.

Spiegel had to close down his 67-year-old furniture company last month because he was running out of money.

Then his 75 employees offered to work for him month without pay to get the company back on its feet.

Then yesterday the Small Business Administration in Washington cut governmental red tape and approved a loan of $50,000 for the Spiegel Furniture Co. in one month, five hours. The loan was processed and approved within five hours after it was received from the agency's Chicago regional office, something of a miracle in itself.

Spiegel, overwhelmed by the loyalty of his employees and the Government's action, said he planned to promote all his workers to stockholders in his company.

Spiegel said he hoped he can get the plant humming again soon. He passed the word to about 75 employees that production would start as soon as they work out arrangements with creditors and suppliers to get raw materials.

The employees will work the first month without pay, he said, but will be issued preferred stock which later will be sold to them at a profit. That in effect will be their pay.

NEW HIGHWAY FACILITIES TAKE SHAPE

Much of the steelwork is in place as work proceeds on overpass (above) which will carry Grand avenue traffic over Market street and unspool one of the city's major traffic tangles. View, to the west along Market, takes in streetcar which appears to be operating in thin air but which actually is rounding the bend in the curving detour which carries traffic on Grand around the construction. At left, work is well started on the expressway which will provide an easier path from the Express Highway to Market street. The new road, a part of the Daniel Boone Expressway, will cut an undulating easterly path from the Express Highway to Market near Spring, with the underpass a vital link in the speedier flow of traffic. Opening of the underpass is scheduled for next July but it will be September 1957 before the expressway link from Boyle avenue will be open to traffic.

ROUGH RECEPTION FOR UNION CHIEF

Union leader Michael Quill is embattled figure at extreme right as hecklers give voice to unflattering comments in session at maintenance shops of the New York City Transit Authority yesterday. Quill, head of the AFL-CIO Transport Workers Union, was scheduled to address the men on pending Social Security legislation. He never got to say a word, however, as foes from a rival independent union, the American Transport Workers, shouted him down.

SENATOR CALLS FOR ALL-WORLD LABORATORIES

Anderson Says United Effort to Harness Nuclear Power Will Serve Peace.

By WILLIAM L. LAURENCE
The New York Times News Service
(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

ROCHESTER, N.Y., April 7 (AP)—Senator Clinton P. Anderson (Dem., New Mexico), chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, proposed last night the establishment of international laboratories in which the scientists of all nations would collaborate to bring about control of the energy of the hydrogen bomb for useful power, as well as the conquest of space and the modification of the weather.

Anderson addressed an international gathering of physicists from many lands, including Russia, attending the sixth annual conference on high energy physics at the University of Rochester.

He suggested that both the United States and Russia stop work on intercontinental ballistic missiles and urged the issuance of world passports to leading scientists and other distinguished citizens in each country to enable them to travel freely and to exchange ideas with their fellows in other parts of the world.

"Staggering Picture," Anderson pointed out, that the possibility of placing hydrogen fusion reaction under control for the production of useful power leads to "a staggering picture of power availability."

It has been estimated, he said, that the amount of heavy hydrogen in the earth is sufficient to meet world power needs at 1000 times the present rate of consumption for the next million years.

"There seems to me to be no other field of technology today in which there is more evident need for pooling all the imagination and ingenuity which the world's scientists can bring together," he said.

"The efforts of any one country to develop controlled fusion reactors in a unilateral manner under the secrecy required by an attitude of competitive nationalism must certainly have the effect of retarding the progress of such a country in this vital field. . . .

"In interest of all, it would seem that the enlightened self-interest of all technologically advanced nations would best be served by their contributing heavily to the creation of a joint world laboratory in which the solution of these problems is sought jointly by scientists from many nations."

If the intercontinental ballistic missile, called by many the "ultimate weapon," should be attained almost simultaneously by both Russia and the United States, Anderson said, "then no city in the world will be safe, no jet interceptor could police the skies and no high-way could promise egress from the affected area. In that day the people of the earth would banish the weapons of poison gas was outlawed in World War II, but only after the expenditure of fantastic sums of money, material and scientific skills."

There is the danger, he warned, that if these new areas of technology continued to be developed in secret, "some nation which at some future time is led by reckless rulers may feel that it has gained so great a lead in some field of science that it may dare to launch an attack for world conquest."

"While this error of judgment will almost certainly be answered by mutual annihilation approaching totality," he said, "every effort must be bent while we still have the chance to prevent such dreadful miscalculations from occurring."

"Scientists, it seems to me, might suggest to statesmen that modern technology could make the greatest contribution to the community of great powers if statesmen would move as far as possible from the secret competitive development of technology under which we have largely operated in recent years. The scientists might urge, indeed, that the race for atomic arms could best be halted by having new fields of science developed jointly by all nations."

"No nation can then make the fatal error of assuming that it has an overwhelming technical lead over a possible adversary. 'Something new seems to be needed in this disarmament business.' The nations make little headway in finding grounds for agreement on reducing the size of armies or destroying parts of atomic stockpiles. Why not, then, try to think constructively about disarmament in potential weapons, in 'ultimate weapons'? It would be a new try at disarmament, this 'disarming the future,' and it would lack some of the defects of proposals for present disarmament."

HARRIMAN SIGNS G.O.P. BILL REDUCING INCOME TAXES

ALBANY, N.Y., April 6 (AP)—Democratic Gov. Averell Harriman yesterday signed a Republican bill cutting state personal income taxes by $40,000,000.

His decision came after much debate within his own party. Grassroots "moderate" were understood to want him to sign it for voter appeal in this election year. The state budget director was said to be in favor of a veto because of large state financial commitments.

The Republican-controlled Legislature had killed a Harriman tax-reduction measure also for $40,000,000 by a method different from the Republican.

SWEDISH PREMIER SAYS STALIN HOME STATE IS QUIET

MOSCOW, April 7 (AP)—Swedish Premier Tage Erlander, first prominent foreigner to visit Soviet Georgia since the recent pro-Stalin demonstrations, says "everything seems calm" in the dead leader's homeland.

Erlander, who is touring Georgia at the Soviet government's invitation, reported by telephone from Tiflis last night that he had found no evidence of damage in the area.

The Premier relayed his impressions in a conversation with an American reporter who phoned him from Moscow.

Erlander said he saw nothing out of the way during a visit to Tiflis University, scene of student demonstrations last month. He said Georgia's Prime Minister G. D. Dzavakhashvili praised the student body of 7000 and praised local Communist party officials at the university.

The Tiflis newspaper Dawn of the East reported previously that the Communist party chief at the university had been ousted for failing to indoctrinate students successfully.

KIRKWOOD GIRL CROWNED FOR LILY FUND CAMPAIGN

Miss Joan Shelton, 656 East Jefferson avenue, Kirkwood, was crowned "Junior Queen of the Year" yesterday for collecting the most money from the sale of imitation lilies on Lily days, March 30 and 31.

The project, in which several hundred young women participated, was to aid crippled children at the Easter Seal Rehabilitation Center here.

Runners-up in the amount of money collected, named junior maids of the year, were Miss Linda Novak, 7509 Cromwell drive, Clayton; Miss Darlene Bruckmann, 1000 Reavis Baracks road, Lemay; Miss Judy Otten, 5656 Helen avenue, Jennings; and Miss Barbara McCrackin, 8451 Colonial lane, Ladue.

A total of $6500 was raised by the young volunteers who worked under the sponsorship of the Junior Easter Seal Auxiliary in connection with the current Easter Seal Drive for crippled children.

7 GENERALS, CONGRESSMAN AT NATIONAL GUARD PARLEY

The ninth annual conference of the National Guard Association of Missouri opened today at Hotel Chase with seven generals and one congressman at the speaking program.

The meeting closes tomorrow, following an election of officers. Principal addresses will be by Lt. Gen. William H. Arnold, former commander of United States Forces in Austria, now commander of Fifth Army, and Representative Paul C. Jones, Kennett, Mo. Tenth Congressional District. Gen. Arnold, whose headquarters are at Chicago, was to speak this afternoon. Congressman Jones will address the annual banquet tonight.

More than 600 National Guardsmen are attending the conference. The association is headed by Col. Ross Garlich, Air National Guard, Jefferson City.

$36,000 SAYING DRAWS EISENHOWER'S THANKS

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—The White House conference committee on education got President Eisenhower's warm thanks yesterday for saying about $36,000 out of its $620,000 budget.

In presenting the committee's report to the President, Chairman Neil H. McElroy told the President about the "ag. Mr. Eisenhower smiled, shook McElroy's hand, and remarked, "I couldn't be more grateful."

FIREMAN BREAKS HIP WHEN FIGHTING FIRE

Trips Over Hose on Stairs in Flat — Man Is Overcome.

Fireman Edward Haltiner of Engine Co. 14 was injured seriously early today when he fell down a stairway while fighting a fire which swept through an apartment at 4268A Castlemans avenue.

The blaze, apparently starting from defective wiring, forced the occupants, Carl Parrott and his family out of the apartment before firemen arrived. Haltiner was among the first to climb the steps to the second floor, carrying one end of a hose.

At the top of the staircase Haltiner was overcome by smoke. He turned and started downstairs, but stumbled over the hose and fell. He suffered a fractured right hip and was taken to City Hospital.

Haltiner, 60 years old, lives at 4109 Shaw boulevard.

A second fireman, Aldo Farina of Engine Co. 29, was overcome by smoke but was revived.

at the scene. The fire caused damaged estimated at $3500 to the building and $1500 to contents.

Mrs. Eugene Heck, 3656A Phillips place, was burned seriously early today when her bedclothing caught fire, apparently from a cigarette. Mrs. Heck, 45 years old, was taken to City Hospital suffering from burns covering more than 50 per cent of her body.

Her husband said her screams awakened him about 3 a.m. He ran to her room and beat out the flames. Mrs. Heck said she believed she fell asleep while smoking.

Fire destroyed the one-story frame home of William J. Day, 270 Buddie drive, south of Florissant, early today. Damage was estimated by firemen at about $7500 to the building and $3000 to contents.

Fire Chief I. H. Graft of the Burke City Volunteer Fire Department reported his men were handicapped because the nearest fire plug was about three blocks from the Day home.

While the fire continued to burn, firemen borrowed enough hose from the Florissant fire department to reach the fire plug, but further efforts to stop the blaze were fruitless. Mr. and Mrs. Day, who have six children, were away from home waiting.

Martha Carr's OPINION

Today's column is devoted to teen-agers who are invited to submit their problems to Martha Carr.

Dear Martha: WHEN you have been going steady with a boy for some time and you break up, is it right to just drop him and not even talk to him anymore? My girl friend and I have been arguing this point for some time. She broke up with her steady and now won't even say "Hi" to him. JERRY.

as soon as they break up, start going with someone else. So it doesn't seem right to refuse to speak, unless the boy has really offended her deeply and she wants nothing to do with him.

Dear Martha: WE ARE IN THE EIGHTH GRADE. We have come to one conclusion. The boys in our room have little respect for the girls. We haven't done anything to lose this respect. They don't really do bad things but they just don't have time to be nice to us. J.L.C. and B.L.O.

I think you'll find that true in almost any school. Few boys that age will take the time to be especially polite, but as they date more and have an opportunity to see how other young people a few years older conduct themselves, they will start treating you with more respect. Girls can help by being ladylike and the boys will soon understand how they must act to keep the respect of the girls.

Dear Martha: WE ARE TWO 16-YEAR-OLD GIRLS who would like to have your advice. Do you think it would be fitting and proper to ask a boy, whom we have never dated before, to a big affair. It is a backwards party. We talk to the boys at school and they are very nice to us. TWO CRAZY MIXED-UP KIDS.

In this day and age, it's considered perfectly proper to invite a boy to a party at which the girls will be hostesses, even though you have never actually dated him. The important thing is to be sure he's the kind of fellow you want to date and isn't going steady with someone else so you won't be embarrassed.

Entertain the crowd with a scavenger hunt. Martha Carr's free leaflet will suggest games. Be sure to include a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

At the Movies

By Myles Standish

THE movie version of the Rodgers and Hammerstein stage musical success, "CAROUSEL," which opened yesterday at the ST. LOUIS THEATRE, faithfully follows the original. It has opened up with the scene where Billy Bigelow, the carnival barker who was killed in a holdup, is in a sort of purgatory where he works on a stepladder hanging stars, and tells the rest in flashback.

The score is all there, I believe, with the exception of the plaintive "You're a Queer One, Julie Jordan" (it's a shame it had to be sacrificed), and carries the warm and folksy appeal of the story over nicely. Hammerstein's evocative and pungent lyrics have never come out better. This is all sung and acted by a cast that is everything one could ask for. As the burly, swaggering, confused Billy, Gordon MacRae is perfect; his baritone is smooth, warm and supple. Newcomer Shirley Jones (who also is starring in "Oklahoma") has the freshness, wholesomeness and sweetness necessary to Julie, and her light and appealing voice reinforce this. Barbara Ruick as Carrie has a pliant comedy sense. Robert Rounseville is an adept starchy Mr. Snow, and lets his rich tenor out delicately in the airy, "When the Children Are Asleep," sung aboard a sailboat. Claramae Turner, with her rich contralto and strong face, is a good Cousin Nettie, and Audrey Christie makes a tough Mrs. Mullin.

This story of the bully regenerated by being allowed to return one day to earth to find the true meaning of love, is, of course, a New England transplanting of Molnar's "Liliom." It is not always as effective in its poignancy as it should have been, as the whole production suffers from a sort of artistic schizophrenia. It cannot seem to make up its mind, under producer Henry Ephron and director Henry King, which way it wants to go between the theatrical and the natural.

There are scenes of shimmering beauty, models of the art of stagecraft, in the heavenly way station, and in the rustic spots about the carnival. Here the new Cinema-Scope 55 process (in which the picture is taken on 55 mm. film, then reduced to 35 mm. for projection) extending its magic at its most brilliant. The images are so crystal clear that the feeling of depth is uncanny. A shot looking down on a surf-swept beach is lovely. So is a fleet of white sails, sweeping an azure bay. But there are other scenes, taken out of doors in close shots where the lighting is bad and the effects are flat.

The dance staged to the jubilant, "Spring Is Bustin' Out All Over," is a high mark in choreographic exuberance. For the first time, a movie ballet was done on locale, outside a sound stage. Here swarming all over and around a waterfront hotel in Boothbay (Maine) Harbor, Dance Director Rod Alexander sent his boys and girls bounding in exuberant, cocky athletic gyrations. It may not be particularly Down East, but it is certainly youth bursting with energy. But in the later beach ballet, the camera sweeps from the real surf-pounded beach and its glistening sands to the artificial decor and artificial children of the original Agnes de Mille ballet. The change was too sudden for me to assimilate. This conflict between artificiality and realism is evident throughout. At one point, MacRae, very wisely, is set singing his "Soliloquy" meditatively while he strolls along a rocky beach and throws pebbles at the sounding surf. Other scenes, done against artificial decor, seem staid by contrast.

It isn't that "Carousel" isn't a highly effective musical. It is. It is just there are too many changes of pace to have it completely weave its spell.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

DEAR MRS. POST: I'm giving a lunch party for a bride-to-be. It is to be a fairly large party, but I'd like it to sound informal. What kind of invitations would be best to do this?

Answer: Second-person invitations: "Will you come to a lunch I am giving for Mary next Wednesday, at half past one o'clock," or else telephone and say the same thing.

Put Cherries on Your Menu

By Edith M. Barber

CHERRY ICE CREAM BALLS ARE DECORATIVE AS WELL AS DELICIOUS AND SHOULD BE SERVED WITH FLAKED COCONUT, NUT SLIVERS AND BRANDIED CHERRY SAUCE.

PERHAPS the best method of insuring a liberal supply of fruits for next season is to use plenty of those available now. The United States Department of Agriculture, which is naturally in a position to know how stocks are moving, suggests that canned and frozen cherries should be put on our menu.

The sour red fruit we call pie cherries is plentiful in both frozen and canned form. And everybody loves cherry pie. There is also a liberal supply of canned sweet cherries and red maraschino cherries, so useful for garnishing and at the same time adding a touch of special flavor to desserts.

IF THERE is leftover juice, or perhaps we should say sirup, when we have used the canned or frozen cherries in desserts or salads, this should be saved and added as part of the liquid for gelatin desserts. It may be a good idea to scant the usual amount of sugar if the sweetened fruit has been used.

It may be well to say a few words about making a successful cherry pie. To prevent soaking of the lower crust, a little flour should be combined with sugar before the crust is filled. I like to sprinkle a little of this over the lower crust before combining the remainder with the fruit.

ANOTHER popular method is to sprinkle sugar over the cherries. After they have stood for two hours, the juice should be drained, mixed with the flour and cooked until thick. The sirup will not be as clear as when the first method is used.

CHERRY PIE (Method 1.) Four cups pitted canned cherries, two cups sugar, one-fourth cup flour, one-eighth teaspoon salt. Combine cherries, sugar, salt and flour. Line a nine-inch pie pan with pastry and fill with cherry mixture. Dot with butter and adjust top crust. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) about 40 minutes.

CHERRY PIE (Method 2.) Sprinkle sugar over cherries and let stand two hours. Drain off sirup. Stir into flour and cook until thick. Pour over cherries in pastry-lined pie pan and bake in hot oven 40 minutes.

CHERRY ICE CREAM BALLS One quart vanilla ice cream, three-fourths cup chopped maraschino cherries, drained (about 30 cherries) half a cup flaked coconut; half a cup blanched almonds; one egg white.

Soften ice cream and fold in cherries. Turn into freezer tray and freeze until firm. Scoop ice cream into balls. Roll half of balls in coconut. Stick filberts into remaining balls. Serve with brandied cherry sauce.

NEW YORK. EVERYONE must have been shocked, as I was, to read of the acid attack on labor columnist Victor Riesel. The police must find the cowardly creature who did this thing, for it is not an attack on an individual alone, but it endangers the right of all people to express their opinion in print. And if we reach the point where people must be afraid to do this, we will be in a very bad way, indeed.

I ALSO READ with anxiety about the new disturbance in the Gaza area, a flareup which seems to have been of considerable magnitude. The United Nations' plea finally succeeded in bringing about an armistice and, naturally, each side accuses the other of having started the trouble.

I do not wonder that Dag Hammarskjold starts on his mission with a plea to every one to remember that he is only taking a first step on a very long road to peace. But it is a first step, and for that most of us will be grateful. Personally, I do not see how it is possible to stop these incidents until a neutral patrol is placed along the entire border. I understand the fear of all the countries involved, for they do not want foreign soldiers on their soil. But, in that case, they should have devised a way to prevent incidents long ago.

THERE is an interesting thing being done by the St. Louis Council on World Affairs to stimulate the interest of high school youths in international questions. It is called "The High School Tour."

Under the plan, high school seniors interested in our Federal Government and in the U.N. are offered a six-day trip to Washington, D.C., and to Grecian Drapery Grecian drapery is used extensively by leading designers for afternoon and evening dresses. The floor length evening gown of draped chiffon in vivid shades is a featured type. Flame and emerald green are two shades that are noteworthy. Printed chiffon, especially in large, floral patterns, also is effective for draped silhouettes.

Contract Bridge

This is one of the columns prepared by Josephine Culbertson before her death.

SOUTH felt that inasmuch as he made two calls on his hand, below, he discharged his full responsibility, but he was mistaken. North dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

AK9 AQ52 K107

NORTH SOUTH

102 KJ10962 K1087

The bidding: North East South West 2NT Pass 3♥ Pass 3NT Pass 4♥ Pass

Pass Pass. South lost nothing but one club trick, and it also goes without saying that the small-slam contract should have been risked. It would have taken a pretty horrible lie of cards to keep South from winning 12 tricks at hearts!

Naturally, disgruntled over missing the slam, North and South then indulged in some mutual recriminations. South pointed out that he had bid twice on his hand, "and he certainly didn't see how he could have done more with only two kings and one jack."

North was too annoyed to debate the matter intelligently, so let's take over for him. In the deeper sense of bidding, South did not make two bids. True, he bid three hearts, but North's two no-trump, and four hearts over three no-trump, but let's take a more realistic view of these actions. What he actually did can be summed up more cogently in a negative way. He didn't pass to two no-trump, and he didn't allow North to play three no-trump.

In other words, he "went along" with the great strength shown by his partner's opening bid, but at no time did he make a strength-showing bid on his own account. The three-heart call, followed by four hearts over three no-trump, might well have represented such a holding as six or seven hearts to the jack, with nothing else in the hand. Surely, at the very least, South could have afforded to bid five hearts over North's three no-trump.

Cancer's Seven Danger Signals

By J. Earl Smith, M.D. St. Louis Health Commissioner

APRIL has been designated throughout the nation as cancer control month. It is the month specifically set apart to tell the public some of the facts about cancer, including the all important one—that many thousands of lives could be saved each year if each one of us would help fight cancer with a checkup.

Today cancer is the second leading cause of death. To us locally this means that last year 1575 St. Louisans died of cancer—an average of over four cancer deaths a day.

And contrary to popular belief, cancer is not confined to the old. Last year cancer took the lives of 23 St. Louis children under 15 years of age. Throughout the land more school children died from cancer in 1955 than from any other disease.

WE NEED periodic checkups because of the nature of cancer—a disease which if it is to be cured, should be diagnosed and treated before it has spread from the part of the body where it started.

Of all Americans who die of all types of cancer today, the deaths of one-third could be avoided if proper treatment were begun before the cancer spreads. This means that in our own city 500 persons died needlessly of cancer in 1955 because they waited too long for a complete physical checkup.

Between annual checkups be alert for cancer's seven danger signals. Appearance of any of these symptoms may or may not mean cancer, but it should alert you to make a visit to your physician.

The seven danger signals are: (1) Any sore that does not heal, (2) A lump or thickening, in the breast or elsewhere, (3) Unusual bleeding or discharge, (4) Any change in a wart or mole, (5) Persistent indigestion or difficulty in swallowing, (6) Persistent hoarseness or cough and (7) Any change in normal bowel habits.

THE ONLY approved methods of curing cancer today are radiation and surgery. However, in the treatment of certain types of malignant growth, hormones, chemotherapy, and radioactive substances have proved extremely valuable.

No cancer was ever cured by pills, powder, nor by any home remedy. Beware of the "wonder doctor" who claims a "secret" method, gadget, or medicine.

WHEN students of typing start to learn their work, they often practice with a certain sentence: "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their country." That 16-word sentence has become so common that it seems a bit tiresome. Countless persons test a typewriter by typing the words. Some of them suppose that all the letters in the alphabet are included. THE OTHER DAY, I analyzed the sentence and found that it falls far short of taking in all the letters of the alphabet. Where is "b" or "c" or "d"? What about "p" and "q"? "v" was left out, and so were "x" and "z." (Sometimes the word "party" is substituted for "country." That provides a "p.") A sentence of that kind ought to be short. If we used many words, of course, we could put in all the letters of the alphabet. I tested out a possible sentence: "This is an example of the work done by this typewriter." When I checked the sentence, I found that nine letters of the alphabet had been left out. Next I made up this sentence: "This is just a very quick example of work done by this machine." That was better. All the letters of the alphabet except "r" and "s" and "t" were used. AFTER further trials I framed this 16-word sentence which contains all the letters of the alphabet: "This is a very quick, useful example of work done by a typewriter I am judging." To get "z" into the sentence was a task. If teachers of typing consider that sentence good enough to use in their schools, I think their pupils will find a little more rest in their work. Perhaps best of the sentence, I have figured out is this one, with 14 words: "Let us slip along very quickly and judge the work performed by this typewriter."
